WORLDWIDE MOVING

OVERSEAS

Chairman's Message/Message du président du conseil

HARD ECONOMIC TIMES seem to follow us without any sign of subsiding. In spite of this, your Board of Directors has been working diligently and effectively at ensuring that our members and the moving industry are well represented and that our interests are presented effectively.

Change is once again upon us and change is always worrisome. The federal government and several provincial governments are reviewing regulations for the moving industry. CAM is closely monitoring this activity and providing input as it can. As an industry association, CAM recognizes the challenges of new regulations and is trying to ensure that our industry's voice is heard in order to meet the needs of consumer and industry stakeholders alike.

Earlier this year, we began a series of successful telephone seminars. We are pleased to report very positive feedback on these seminars whose topics included HST, Record Storage and Hiring Practices. We plan to continue these seminars that present timely, relevant and interesting information to our members.

CAM membership has become the qualification for some government contracts. CAM's validation process for membership and members' adherence to the Code of Ethics are proving to be valuable tools and competitive advantages for all members. Membership is now at an all time high. We have just revised our membership structure and fees to be more inclusive. We hope this will lead to further growth.

I invite you to attend our annual conference to be held November 14th–16th in Toronto. The conference theme is Times are changing!...Are you ready? We have a great lineup of speakers who will address business issues that concern movers – planning, diversification, technology, Canada's economy and much more.

I believe these are significant achievements and I assure you that your Board will continue to promote the ethical and professional interests of its members in a way that will help us all in these hard times and the good times to follow.

Tom Filgiano
Chairman, Canadian Association of Movers

LE RALENTISSEMENT économique ne semble pas vouloir lâcher prise. En dépit de cela, votre conseil d'administration s'est appliqué avec zèle et efficacité à assurer que nos membres, nos intérêts et l'industrie du déménagement soient bien représentés.

Nous sommes à nouveau confrontés à des changements, ce qui se veut une source de préoccupation. Le gouvernement fédéral et plusieurs gouvernements provinciaux ont révisé les règlements de l'industrie du déménagement. L'ACD surveille de près cette initiative et fournit son aide dans la mesure du possible. À titre d'association industrielle, l'ACD reconnaît les défis que posent les nouveaux règlements et veille à se faire entendre afin de combler les besoins des consommateurs et les joueurs de l'industrie.

Nous avons initié des séminaires téléphoniques durant l'année. Nous étions heureux de constater la réaction positive sur ces entretiens qui ont porté notamment sur la TVH, la gestion des dossiers et les pratiques d'embauche. Nous planifions en organiser d'autres sur des points d'actualité qui intéressent nos membres.

L'appartenance à l'ACD est devenue l'une des exigences pour obtenir certains des contrats du gouvernement. Le système de validation des membres et l'adhérence à un code d'éthique vous procurent de précieux outils et un avantage compétitif. L'adhésion n'a jamais été aussi élevée. Nous venons de revoir notre structure de la cotisation pour la rendre plus équitable. Nous espérons ainsi rejoindre un plus grand nombre de compagnies.

Je vous invite à participer à notre conférence annuelle du 14 au 16 novembre à Toronto. Le thème est : Times are changing!...Are you ready? (Les temps changent...êtes vous prêts ?). Nous avons un bon choix de conférenciers qui nous entretiendront sur des sujets qui touchent notre industrie – la planification, la diversification, la technologie l'économie canadienne...et j'en passe.

Je crois qu'il s'agit de réalisations importantes et je vous assure que votre conseil d'administration continuera à promouvoir les intérêts éthiques et professionnels des membres pour aider à traverser cette période difficile et à préparer une nouvelle reprise.

President's Message/Message du président

EARLY REPORTS indicate that CAM members have had a successful summer moving season but, as with every industry, movers are being adversely affected by the economy. CAM is trying to give its members a competitive advantage through its lobbying, education and membership activities. One of CAM's prime goals is to make CAM membership a symbol that is recognized by Canadian consumers and valued by movers.

CAM's working committees are achieving positive results. The Conference Committee under the leadership of Leonard Hoyt has been very effective in assembling the best program ever with a wide range of business topics. The International Committee has set standards and a Canadian code of ethics for international movers. The Membership Committee led by David Ogilvy has been communicating the value of CAM membership to the industry and has developed a new membership fee structure. Rick Taylor has driven the development of a new packing/unpacking training video with the support of the Education Committee.

The association appreciates the efforts of the members of the various committees. Their input brings a broad base of business and industry expertise to the improvement of CAM's programs and activities.

As an association, we have been well represented in the media with interviews and television appearances on consumer-talk shows. This has led to better two-way communications between CAM and both government and the media.

A highlight of the last few months' activity has been work that CAM is doing with the Toronto Police Service. We are now seeing practices such as intimidation, fraudulent contracts and some appropriation of consumers' goods being treated as criminal acts. The challenge will be to help law enforcement officers understand what constitutes legitimate and legal actions by a mover and what does not.

Interesting times are ahead. Let's talk about them at the conference in November.

John Levi, President

SELON des rapports récents, les membres de l'ACD ont eu un été profitable mais comme ce fut le cas dans d'autres industries, l'économie a affecté celle du déménagement. L'ACD tente de procurer un avantage compétitif à ses membres par le biais de pressions politiques et de cours éducatifs. L'un de nos principaux buts est de faire de l'appartenance à l'ACD, un symbole reconnu auprès des consommateurs et qui fait la fierté des déménageurs.

Les comités d'étude de l'ACD ont atteint des résultats encourageants. Le Comité des conférences, sous la direction de Leonard Hoyt, s'est employé à composer le meilleur programme qui soit, où seront discutés des sujets variés à la conférence. Le Comité des déménagements outre-mer a établi des normes et un code canadien d'éthique pour les déménageurs internationaux. Le Comité de l'adhésion que dirige David Ogilvy, s'affaire à promouvoir la valeur d'appartenir à l'ACD et a élaboré une nouvelle structure de frais d'adhésion. Rick Taylor s'est occupé de concevoir, avec l'appui du Comité de l'éducation, une nouvelle vidéo sur l'emballage et le déballage.

L'association apprécie les efforts des participants à ces comités. Grâce à leur contribution, nous bénéficions d'une large gamme de services de spécialistes de l'industrie et du monde des affaires qui nous permettent d'améliorer nos programmes et activités.

En tant qu'association nous avons été très visibles dans les médias, grâce à des entrevues et à des émissions infovariétés. Il en ressort de meilleures communications bilatérales entre l'ACD, le gouvernement et les médias.

Le travail de l'ACD auprès du service de police de Toronto a été un point saillant de notre travail dernièrement. L'usage de méthodes pour intimider, les contrats frauduleux et l'appropriation de biens des consommateurs sont vus comme des actes criminels. Notre défi est maintenant d'aider les agents de paix à comprendre ce qui est un acte légitime ou un acte pouvant mener à une poursuite.

Nous faisons face à de formidables enjeux. Venez en discuter à la conférence en novembre.

A Moving Experience

Senior Move Management

By Mary Kay Buysse

ATTORNEY Jane Miller Hodgson is meeting with a client. She quickly glances at her BlackBerry and notices her mom's number. At home later that evening, she telephones her younger brother and sister to tell them Mom's physician has "strongly recommended" Mom move to an assisted living apartment – and the sooner, the better. Violet Miller can no longer live alone in her home of 44 years, with two sets of narrow stairs to navigate every day. It's just too much for her frail 82 year-old frame, especially after two recent falls.

The three adult Miller children are scattered across Canada. How can they get this move done? Would they need to spend a week's vacation from work just sorting through roomfuls of closets and drawers, the garage and the shed? Who has the time? The family home is packed with stuff – from attic to basement and beyond. Jane's younger sister, Rose, mentions something to Jane and her brother, Bill, about the possibility of looking into a senior move manager to help them. She read about it in the paper several months ago.

Bill bluntly asks, "What exactly is a senior move manager?"

Encouraged by the rising tide of retiring baby boomers and the desire of many empty nesters to simplify their lives in smaller spaces, moving coordinators for the 55+ crowd have become part of an emerging industry: senior move management (also known as senior relocation). Anyone who has ever moved knows how stressful the process can be.

Particularly challenged are older adults and their families when it is time to pack up a home of 30, 40, or 50 years. Fortunately, local small businesses all over Canada are helping with this transition. A Senior Move Manager is a professional who specializes in assisting older adults and families with the emotional and physical aspects of relocation and/or "aging in place."

A senior move manager moves people – not boxes. Many senior move managers have backgrounds in social work, health care, nursing and psychology, while others come to this industry from the corporate world of project management, technology, accounting or marketing. What all senior move managers share, however, is a commitment to connecting with mid-life and older adults and a desire to perform meaningful work. In fact, a national non-profit association was created eight years ago to support US and Canadian professionals in the senior move/senior relocation industry – the National Association of Senior Move Managers (NASMM).

A small number of senior move managers are also actual moving companies. The many senior move managers who are not movers work closely with moving companies to complete this critical aspect of the job. Many of these same companies have joined NASMM as affiliate members or Industry Partners. They are NASMM's trusted colleagues in the rapidly growing area of senior relocation, transition and downsizing. Moving companies are valued collaborators in helping NASMM shape the bright future and integrity of senior move management.

Senior move professionals guide clients through a journey that's often as much about sorting through a lifetime's worth of memories as it is about possessions. They facilitate the decision regarding what to take, what to leave, and how to redirect it. They also set up and organize

Une expérience de déménagement

La gestion du déménagement des aînés

Par Mary Kay Buysse

L'AVOCATE Jane Miller Hodgson se trouve avec un client quand elle voit à la dérobée le numéro de sa mère sur son BlackBerry. Plus tard dans la soirée elle téléphone à sa sœur et à son frère plus jeunes et leur annonce que le médecin de leur mère « conseille fortement » de placer celle-ci dans une résidence avec services et, le plus tôt, le mieux. Violet Millet ne peut plus vivre seule dans la maison où elle habite depuis 44 ans, où il y a de deux escaliers à marches étroites qu'elle doit monter et descendre chaque jour. C'est trop pour cette femme fragile de 82 ans, surtout qu'elle est tombée deux fois dernièrement.

Les trois enfants Miller vivent dans différents coins du Canada. Comment peuvent-ils planifier le déménagement ? Devront-ils prendre une semaine de vacances pour venir faire un tri des armoires, des tiroirs, du garage et de la remise ? Qui a le temps ? La maison familiale est comble du grenier au sous-sol et plus. Rose, la jeune sœur de Jane suggère de songer à s'adresser à un gestionnaire en déménagement des aînés pour les aider. Elle a lu quelque chose dans le journal à ce sujet il y a quelques mois.

Bill demande perplexe « c'est quoi exactement un gestionnaire en déménagement des aînés » ?

Face à la marée des boumeurs à la retraite et au désir de plusieurs couples dont les enfants ont quitté le nid de se simplifier la vie en vivant dans plus petit, les gestionnaires en déménagement des 55 ans +, appartiennent à une industrie naissante, (aussi nommée réinstallation des aînés). Quiconque est passé par un déménagement, connaît tout le stress qui l'accompagne. Cela peut se révéler tout un défi pour les parents âgés et leur famille quand il s'agit particulièrement d'emballer des effets accumulés depuis 30, 40 et 50 ans. Heu-reusement, il existe de petites entreprises partout au Canada pour faire ce travail. Un gestionnaire en déménagement des aînés est un professionnel qui entend aider les aînés et leur famille à composer avec les aspects émotifs et physiques d'une réinstallation ou du placement dans un foyer.

Un gestionnaire en déménagement des aînés s'occupe de déménager des personnes – non des boîtes. Plusieurs de ces spécialistes ont des antécédents dans les services sociaux, soins de santé, soins infirmiers et en psychologie, tandis que d'autres viennent du secteur corporatif et œuvrent dans la gestion de projets, la technologie, la comptabilité ou le marketing. Ce qu'ils ont en commun est leur engagement à composer avec les personnes plus âgées et le désir de se rendre utiles. En fait, une association sans but lucratif a été créée il y a huit ans pour soutenir les professionnels qui ciblent les déménagements/réinstallations d'aînés aux É-U et au Canada. Il s'agit de la National Association of Senior Move Managers (NASMM).

Un petit nombre de gestionnaires en déménagement d'aînés sont également des compagnies de déménagement existantes. Les nombreux gestionnaires qui ne sont pas des déménageurs travaillent étroitement en collaboration avec des compagnies de déménagement pour leur confier cet aspect critique de leur travail. Plusieurs d'entre eux sont membres affiliés de la NASMM ou des partenaires de l'industrie. Ils constituent les tenants dignes de confiance de la NASMM dans la réinstallation, la transition ou la reconfiguration de logement des aînés, et il s'agit d'un travail de plus en plus en demande. Les compagnies de déménagement peuvent être de précieux collaborateurs de la NASMM pour l'aider à modéliser un avenir prometteur et intègre dans la gestion du déménagement des aînés.

Les professionnels en déménagement des aînés guident leurs clients dans le tri parmi les nombreux souvenirs et possessions accumulés durant leur vie. Ils facilitent la décision quant aux choses à apporter, à se défaire et quoi en faire. Ils organisent également la nouvelle résidence. La prolifération des communautés de retraités et la dissémination des enfants un peu partout ont permis de créer ce nouveau créneau. Les familles à deux revenus ont peu de temps d'aider leurs parents à emballer et à déballer. D'autres aînés, seuls ou sans enfants, reçoivent peu d'aide sous une forme quelconque et sont trop atterrés pour prendre la situation en main. Même quand la famille est là pour aider, les personnes peuvent être en proie à de vives émotions et rendre l'expérience épineuse pour tous.

Typiquement le gestionnaire de déménagement trace un plan des dimensions du nouveau logement pour que le client puisse se représenter les meubles qui entreront et leur configuration. Déménager dans de plus petits locaux exige une approche créative et réaliste. À mesure que le client fait l'inventaire de biens accumulés au cours des années, le gestionnaire l'aide à décider ce qui constitue un « trésor » et ce qui constitue une vraie « cochonnerie ». Le gestionnaire fait les arrangements pour la vente en consigne, les dons et cadeaux. La SMMS collaborera avec les maîtres-déménageurs et planifiera l'entreposage, l'aménagement à la nouvelle demeure et le nettoyage de l'ancienne.

Bien que les services des gestionnaires en déménagement d'aînés varient, la plupart s'occupent en tout ou en partie des aspects suivants :

- Planifier intégralement le déménagement ou dresser un plan d'action.

the new home. The growth in retirement communities and the scattering of adult children have created this niche service. Two-income households leave adult children little time to help aging parents pack and move. Other seniors, single or without children, don't have much help of any kind, and are too overwhelmed to tackle the problem alone. Even when family help is available, emotions can run high, making the process thorny and upsetting for everyone involved.

Typically, the move manager draws a floor plan of the new setting, so the client can visualize what furniture will fit and where it will go. Transitioning to smaller quarters often requires a creative and insightful approach. As the client sorts through generations of belongings, the move manager helps he or she decide what constitutes "treasure" and what is truly "trash." The move managers arrange for consignment, donations, and gifts. SMMs will collaborate with movers and plan for storage, set up the new household, and see that the former house is cleaned.

Although specific services vary, most senior move managers can help with some or all of the following:

- Developing an overall move or "age in place" plan
- Organizing, sorting and downsizing
- Customized floor plans
- Arranging for the profitable disposal of unwanted items through auction, estate sale, buy-out, consignment, donation, or a combination of the above
- Interviewing, scheduling and overseeing movers
- Arranging shipments and storage
- Professional packing
- Unpacking and setting up the new home
- Related services, such as cleaning, waste removal, shopping, senior escort, assisting with selection of a realtor and helping prepare the home to be sold.

Some senior move managers provide these services directly; others function in more of an oversight or management role. Senior move managers have extensive, practical knowledge about the costs, quality, and availability of various local community resources.

Clients will often ask NASMM members to manage a move across the miles. In this event, the NASMM member who is directing the project where the older adult currently is located will connect with another NASMM member at the receiving end. Together, they will ensure the older adult's seamless transition from one setting to another.

Jane and her siblings decide to call a senior move manager. They feel better already, knowing a professional senior move manager will handle the daunting tasks associated with gently transitioning their mom to a new (and safe) apartment.

Mary Kay Buysse, MS, has been the Executive Director of the National Association of Senior Move Managers (NASMM) since 2006. Mary Kay oversees membership recruitment, retention, education and program development, and day-to-day operations for NASMM. With a Master of Science degree in Human Services and Gerontology, Mary Kay has worked in the non-profit, association sector of aging services for over a decade.

- Organiser, faire, le trie et le décombrement.
- Dessiner un plan sur mesure du nouveau logement.
- Faire les arrangements pour disposer de façon profitable des effets non désirés par le biais d'encan, de vente sur place, de rachat, de consignations, de dons, ou une combinaison de tout cela.
- Rencontrer les déménageurs, fixer une date et superviser.
- Faire les arrangements d'expédition ou d'entreposage.
- Voir à ce que l'emballage soit fait professionnellement.
- Déballer et ranger le nouveau logement.
- Voir aux services connexes tels que le nettoyage, les déchets, les achats sans oublier accompagner les aînés, assister dans le choix d'un agent immobilier et aider à préparer la vente de la maison.

Certains gestionnaires en déménagement d'aînés procurent tous ces services directement. D'autres jouent plutôt un rôle de supervision. Les gestionnaires en déménagement d'aînés ont des connaissances pratiques et accrues des coûts, de la qualité et de la disponibilité des ressources communautaires locales.

Il arrive souvent que des clients demandent à la NASMM de s'occuper d'un déménagement à plusieurs kilomètres. Dans cette éventualité le membre de la NASMM qui dirige le projet sur place contactera un autre membre de la NASMM dans la nouvelle localité. Ensemble ils s'assureront que l'installation se fait sans accrochage.

Jane et les autres enfants ont décidé de faire appel à un gestionnaire de déménagement d'aînés. Ils se sentent déjà mieux en sachant qu'un professionnel prendra en main les tâches difficiles de déménager leur mère à un nouveau logement plus sécuritaire.

Mary Kay Buysse est directrice principale de la National Association of Senior Move Managers (NASMM) depuis 2006. Elle supervise le recrutement, la rétention des effectifs, le programme d'éducation et de développement et les activités de tous les jours de la NASMM. Elle détient une maîtrise en services sociaux et en gérontologie. Elle œuvre dans les services à but non lucratif pour personnes âgées depuis plus de 10 ans.

CAM's Education Program

Early in 2009, CAM launched an improved and expanded education program for its members. Before that date, only the Canadian Professional Mover course was offered to members for their staff development. Exactly one year ago, CAM introduced a new video-based module to help train new helpers, as another component of the education program. CAM member companies are now being given access to both courses for an unlimited number of employees for 12 months from the date of paid registration. Since these changes were introduced, the volume of participants engaged in the education program has been tremendous.

CAM's Canadian Professional Mover course is Canada's training program for moving consultants to learn about their role and moving services in Canada. Graduates earn a Canadian Professional Mover designation and can use the "CPM" logo on business cards and stationery. Seven students graduated from the course since our last report on April 23, 2010, bringing the total number of CPM graduates since January 1, 2009 to 71.

The helper training module consists of a short video and a quiz on the content viewed. Since the video training was first offered in August 2009, 72 new helpers hired into 32 moving companies have completed the program.

CAM is currently developing another training module to add to its education program. A Packing and Unpacking Training Video will soon join the family of courses. Watch for announcements.

The fee to access all courses is $300.00 plus GST/HST. To find out more about the Canadian Professional Mover Course or helper video training, or to register your company for staff access, contact CAM, by phone at 905-848-6579 or 1-866-860-0065, by fax at 905-848-8499, by email at members@mover.net, or through its website, at www.mover.net/movers/programs/course.htm.

Programme d'éducation de l'ACD

Au début de 2009, L'ACD a amélioré et élargi son programme d'éducation à l'intention des membres. Avant cette date, elle offrait uniquement le Cours des déménageurs professionnels du Canada pour parfaire les connaissances du personnel de ses membres. Il y a exactement un an, L'ACD a ajouté une nouvelle composante à son programme et a introduit une nouvelle vidéo à l'intention des aides-déménageurs. Les compagnies membres de l'ACD ont maintenant accès aux deux cours et peuvent inscrire autant d'employés qu'elles le désirent durant une période de 12 mois à compter de la date de paiement. Depuis que nous avons introduit ces changements, nous avons constaté un nombre extraordinaire de participants au programme d'éducation.

Le Cours des déménageurs professionnels du Canada de l'ACD est un cours de formation à l'intention des consultants en déménagement pour leur apprendre en quoi consistent leur rôle et les services de déménagement au Canada. Les diplômés du cours peuvent utiliser le logo « DPC » sur leurs cartes d'affaires et en-têtes de lettre. Sept personnes ont terminé le cours avec succès depuis notre dernier rapport le 23 avril dernier, ce qui porte le nombre de diplômés à 71 depuis le 1er janvier 2009.

Le module sur la formation des aides-déménageurs consiste en une courte vidéo et un questionnaire sur la présentation visuelle. Depuis l'introduction de ce module en août 2009, 72 nouvelles personnes embauchées dans 32 compagnies de déménagement ont suivi ce cours.

L'ACD est sur le point d'ajouter un nouveau module de formation à son programme d'éducation. Le nouveau cours sera présenté sous forme de vidéo sur la méthode d'emballer et de déballer les effets. Surveillez les communiqués.

Le coût est de 300 $ plus la TPS/TVH pour accéder à ces cours. Pour en apprendre d'avantage sur le Cours des déménageurs professionnels du Canada ou pour y inscrire votre compagnie et votre personnel, veuillez contacter l'ACD au 905-848-6579; 1-866-860-0065 sans frais; 905-848-8499 par fax; members@mover.net par courriel ou visitez : www.mover.net/movers/programs/course.htm.

Innovation and Leadership

By Richard Worzel

TWO TOPICS that are consistent hot buttons in the corporate world are innovation, and leadership. Both are in high demand for conferences, seminars, and workshops. Yet, what is not quite as apparent is that the two are related: one can lead to the other.

The relationship between leadership and innovation is pretty clear: if an organization's leaders do not support innovation, in action as well as in words, it's a pretty safe bet that innovation can't happen. The most that will happen is that employees will do their best to look good without actually taking any risks and doing good. In such an organization, innovation will not happen, and the organization will fall behind its more innovative competitors, even as management puzzles over why it can't seem to catch up.

However, the manner in which innovation can improve the leadership of an organization is not as apparent. It's something I only discovered by working with clients who wanted to promote innovation in their organization.

Two Primary Kinds of Innovation Techniques

From my perspective as a futurist, there are two primary kinds of techniques for exercising innovation: top-down, and bottom-up. Top-down means looking at the big picture, and breaking it into pieces in order to uncover opportunities that might not have occurred to you otherwise. Hence, scenario planning, where you look out to a time horizon several years away and consider a number of 'what-if' possible futures that your organization might experience, and then come up with contingency plans to deal with each one, is a top-down technique. So, for example, I worked with a logistics company that dealt with the financial industry. We prepared a number of possible scenarios for the future of their clients, and then identified what services their clients would need over the next 5-7 years. Once we had identified these services, the logistics firm was able to think through what they could do to support their clients in the defined circumstances, and therefore what services they should be prepared to develop over the same time horizon.

A bottom-up innovation technique is one where you start at ground level, in the nitty-gritty of an operation, and use one of several different kinds of brainstorming techniques to come up with new ways of doing things.

Hence, many of Edward de Bono's brainstorming techniques are bottom-up approaches. I've developed one called the Opportunity Matrix, where I break an organization's operations down into tiny pieces, and then pose focused questions about how those tiny parts of their operations might be improved. By forcing an organization down to the micro level, it forces people to come up with fresh thoughts instead of recycling ideas from elsewhere.

Because you are dealing at such a minute level, you can't fall back on clichés or old ideas. They don't fit. The result is that you come up with hundreds of new ideas for tiny improvements, and then sift through them to find the ones that seem to hold the most promise, that play to your strengths, or that you just like the best, and develop those.

Where leadership comes into this is slightly harder to see; you have to approach it obliquely.

How to Create Excitement

A top-down approach, such as scenario planning, can both give your organization direction and a sense of purpose, and help you inspire your people. A believable Big Picture can be heady stuff, especially if you develop it with a plan to bring it to fruition, as you can do by developing a Desired Future scenario. It can create excitement, which energizes people and leads to fresh enthusiasm and further fresh thinking. In fact, I have a very simple formula for this: Dreams + Belief = Excitement. If you can help your people paint an enticing view of the future, one that they sincerely want to see happen, and make it seem possible, then people get excited about it. In contrast, if you paint a not-very-interesting picture of tomorrow, then even if people believe it will happen, there's no excitement. And if you paint a fantastic image of a really terrific future world, but nobody believes that it will happen, they may mouth the corporate slogans, but you won't have won their hearts and minds; there will be no enthusiasm.

So, painting an highly desirable picture

Innovation et leadership

Par Richard Worzel

L'INNOVATION et le leadership sont deux points qui constituent des signes révélateurs dans l'exploitation d'une entreprise. Il s'agit de thèmes très en demande pour les conférences, les séminaires et les ateliers. Ce qui est moins évident, c'est la façon dont ils sont reliés: l'un mène à l'autre.

Le lien entre le leadership et l'innovation est clair: si les chefs d'une entreprise ne préconisent pas l'innovation, en actes et en paroles, il est à peu près certain que rien n'arrivera pour susciter l'innovation. Au mieux, les employés feront leur possible pour bien paraître. Ils feront leur travail sans toutefois prendre de risques. En l'absence d'innovation, un tel établissement peut s'attendre à prendre un recul sur ses concurrents, même si la direction n'arrive pas à comprendre pourquoi elle ne peut progresser.

Or la façon dont une stratégie d'innovation peut améliorer le leadership dans un établissement n'est pas évidente. C'est un fait que j'ai découvert en travaillant avec des clients désireux de faire preuve d'innovation dans leur établissement.

Deux types primaires de méthodes d'innovation

À mon avis en tant que futuriste, il existe deux types primaires de méthodes d'innovation: la méthode en aval et celle en amont. La méthode en aval consiste à envisager le tableau dans son ensemble et à l'analyser sous tous ses angles afin de découvrir des occasions que l'on n'aurait pas saisies autrement. Par exemple, la création de scénarios où l'on établit des prévisions d'horizon temporel à long terme, en tenant compte d'éventualités adverses possibles et la préparation d'un plan de secours pour composer avec chacune, est une méthode en aval. J'ai travaillé avec une compagnie de logistique qui traitait avec l'industrie financière. Nous avons préparé un nombre de scénarios possibles pour la viabilité de sa clientèle et avons identifié les services dont celle-ci aurait besoin dans cinq à sept ans. Cela fait, la compagnie de logistique a pu voir ce qu'elle pourrait faire pour servir ses clients dans des circonstances précises et mettre au point les services qu'elle pourrait leur offrir à ce moment.

La méthode en amont consiste à commencer d'abord par examiner les difficultés au bas de l'échelle, en faisant appel à différentes techniques de remue-méninges pour trouver de nouvelles façons de faire. Plusieurs des techniques de remue-méninges d'Edward de Bono relèvent de cette méthode. J'ai mis au point une technique que j'ai nommée « la matrice des possibilités » où il s'agit de fragmenter les activités de l'entreprise dans ses moindres segments et de poser des questions spécifiques sur la façon dont elles pourraient être améliorées. En forçant un organisme à faire un examen au micro-niveau, les gens sont obligés of the future, that your people fervently desire, and showing them how it can be achieved inspires them, excites them, energizes them, and underscores your leadership abilities.

How to Motivate People

Meanwhile, giving your people authority to come up with new ideas, and then seeing the best of those ideas implemented, as happens with successful bottom-up techniques, helps keep excitement alive when the novelty of a Grand Idea has worn off, because (a) they can see that your operations are steadily improving, and (b) they see that they are both being listened to, and that they are making a difference. Both of these buttress people's belief in the organizations they work for. Everyone wants to work for a winner, and winners get better all the time, learning from the past, and preparing for the future. And going home with the feeling that you've accomplished something, and made a difference in the world, according to management studies going back decades, is one of the strongest of motivations for virtually everyone. And creating an environment where people feel they're working for a winner, that they are being listened to, and where they can make a difference, dramatically enhances the attraction of working for your organization – and by inference, enhances your leadership abilities.

Nor are these things just good PR. By creating a future that people can believe in and get excited about, an environment where they feel they can contribute, and the belief that they are working for a winning team, you are creating real improvements in your organization. And these things will help no matter how successful you are; top quartile, or bottom-feeder. Leadership, true leadership, comes from leading people towards success in a way that makes them believe they contributed to it.

And that's the link between leadership and innovation. Ironically, it's very simple – which is not to say it's easy. But then, if it was easy, everyone would be #1, wouldn't they?

de libérer instinctivement de nouvelles idées au lieu de recycler celles venant d'ailleurs. Comme il s'agit d'exprimer des idées spontanément, vous ne pouvez pas retomber sur des clichés et de vieux modèles. Ils n'ont pas leur place. Vous facilitez ainsi l'éclosion d'idées nouvelles pour apporter de petites améliorations. Vous les épilchez ensuite pour trouver celles qui pourraient être prometteuses, qui sont en fonction de vos capacités ou que vous aimeriez développer.

Il est plus difficile de voir où le leadership intervient; il faut l'examiner obliquement.

Comment créer de l'excitation

Une méthode en aval, comme dans le cas de la planification de scénarios, peut vous procurer un sens de direction, un but précis et peut vous aider à inspirer votre personnel. Un tableau d'ensemble crédible peut être grisant, surtout si vous avez un plan pour le mettre en pratique. Il en est de même pour un scénario exposant un avenir désirable. Cela peut créer de l'animation, stimuler le personnel, engendrer un renouveau d'enthousiasme et des idées nouvelles. En fait, j'emploie une formule très simple à ce sujet : rêves + croyances = excitation. Si vous pouvez aider vos collaborateurs à broser un tableau stimulant de l'avenir, un tableau qu'ils désirent vraiment transformer en réalité, en constatant qu'il est réaliste, vous stimulerez leur énergie. Si par contre vous ne présentez pas un tableau très intéressant ils ne seront pas emballés même s'ils savent qu'il est réaliste. Si vous brossez un tableau fantastique d'un avenir vraiment super vos collaborateurs seront septiques. Ils pourront faire semblant de louer les slogans de la corporation mais vous ne réchaufferez ni leur cœur ni leur esprit; ils ne manifesteront tout simplement pas d'enthousiasme.

Si vous brossez le tableau d'un avenir que vos collaborateurs désirent ardemment et en leur montrant comment y parvenir, vous les inspirerez, les stimulerez et ferez preuve de capacité de leader.

Comment motiver votre personnel

Si vous autorisez vos employés à vous présenter de nouvelles idées et retenez les meilleures, comme cela se produit avec l'utilisation des méthodes en amont, vous soutiendrez l'effervescence quand la nouveauté d'une grande idée diminue (a), parce qu'ils voient une amélioration constante dans la gestion des opérations et (b), ils voient que vous les écoutez et qu'ils comptent pour quelque chose. Ces deux facteurs consolident leur foi en la compagnie. Tous désirent travailler pour un gagnant et les gagnants s'améliorent, apprennent du passé et préparent l'avenir. Selon des études faites en gestion il y a plusieurs années, il n'y a rien de plus motivant pour la plupart que de rentrer chez-soi avec le sentiment d'avoir accompli quelque chose et de compter pour quelque chose dans le monde. Un environnement où les personnes sont conscientes de travailler pour un gagnant, sont écoutées et savent qu'elles peuvent faire une différence, rehausse grandement le désir de travailler pour vous et par conséquent rehausse vos aptitudes à commander.

Ces attributs ne sont pas juste valables pour entretenir de bonnes relations publiques. Vous apporterez des améliorations véritables au sein de votre entreprise en offrant aux employés un avenir dans lequel ils croient et trouvent motivant, un environnement où ils peuvent contribuer et croire qu'ils travaillent pour une équipe gagnante. Ces facteurs aideront, que ce soit au haut ou au bas de l'échelle et peut importe votre degré de réussite. Le véritable leadership c'est l'art de diriger les employés vers succès d'une façon qui leur permette de croire qu'ils y ont contribué.

Tel est le lien entre le leadership et l'innovation. Ironiquement, c'est très simple – et en même temps pas facile à faire. Si ça l'était, chacun serait un numéro 1 pas vrai ?

I Hate Salespeople

(and the reasons you shouldn't)

By BJ Farish

HAVE YOU EVER uttered the words, "I hate salespeople" after a telemarketer interrupts your family dinner or a sales representative drops by your office unannounced? At times, these account executives, regional territory managers (or whatever other title they use) can be an annoyance or a distraction.

In the movie "Secondhand Lions", Michael Caine and Robert Duvall's characters spent many hours on their front porch with their shotguns across their laps. They waited for the parade of door to door salesmen to start. As soon as each one got out of his car, they would begin shooting (not to kill, just to scare him away). One particularly tenacious salesman had done his research about these two wealthy and slightly eccentric men. Ducking behind his car, he explained that he had traveled the world looking for a product that would benefit them. The salesman asked permission to show the product, which turned out to be a clay pigeon thrower that they could use for target practice. They made the deal on the spot for an item that provided hours of entertainment. After that, they listened to every person that tried to sell them something. They did not buy every time, but they did evaluate each opportunity instead of shooting first.

Think about the times when you have bought an item from a salesperson and you actually enjoyed the experience. Do you remember thinking, "This guy doesn't seem like a salesperson at all?" Good salespeople will ask you questions in order to understand your wants and needs so that they can help you solve a problem. They will not make you feel like you are being sold, but that they are educating you so that you can decide for yourself what option will best meet your wants and needs.

An insurance agency owner in the Seattle area is a master at the process of educating his customers to help them make decisions in their own best interest. Many times, prospective clients come to him to seek out a competitive bid so that they can save money. His rates are usually competitive, but one of his secrets to success (shhh, don't tell anyone) is that he will recommend that his customers drop insurance that they do not need. He makes suggestions to his customers that take money out of his pocket (in the short-term, anyway). In the long-term, he reaps the benefits of being candid with his clients about the coverage that his clients need. Would you recommend a salesperson that has your best interest in mind? Would you recommend a salesperson that is willing to sacrifice short-term gain for long-term relationships?

How can you and your sales team show your customers and potential customers that you want to help them make a decision that will benefit them? Sales representatives can learn from the Boy Scouts of America. Their law states that a scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean, and reverent. As your team meets with customers, have them keep the points of the scout law in their minds, especially the trustworthy, helpful, friendly, courteous, and kind parts of the law. They will experience greater success as they focus on helping their customers instead of selling their customers.

Je déteste les vendeurs

(et voici pourquoi vous ne devriez pas)

Par BJ Farish

AVEZ-VOUS DÉJÀ DIT : « je déteste les vendeurs » après qu'un télévendeur ou un représentant de ventes qui a frappé à votre porte sans rendez-vous vienne interrompre votre souper familial ? Il arrive que ces représentants, gérants de district (ou peut importe le titre qu'il se donnent) peuvent agacer et déranger. Dans le film « Les vieux lions », Michael Caine et Robert Duvall passent plusieurs heures sur leur véranda, un fusil sur les genoux. Ils attendent que commence la procession des colporteurs. Dès que l'un sort de sa voiture, ils commencent à tirer (non pas pour le tuer mais l'éloigner). Or, un vendeur tenace a fait une recherche sur ces deux hommes riches et excentriques. En se mettant à l'abri derrière sa voiture, il leur explique qu'il a parcouru le monde pour trouver un produit dont ils bénéficieraient. Le vendeur leur demande la permission de venir leur montrer ce produit qui sert à exercer le tir au pigeon d'argile. Ils achètent sur le coup cet objet qui leur procure des heures d'agrément. Après cela, ils écoutent chaque personne qui désire leur vendre quelque chose. Ils n'achètent pas chaque fois, mais ils prennent le temps d'évaluer chaque offre au lieu de commencer à tirer.

Songez aux fois où vous avez acheté un produit d'un vendeur et en avez profité. Songez aussi à celles où vous avez pensé : « cette personne n'a pas l'allure d'un vendeur du tout » Les bons vendeurs vous poseront des questions afin de comprendre vos désirs et vos nécessités pour résoudre un problème. Ils ne vous laisseront pas l'impression de vouloir vendre coûte que coûte, mais bien de vous renseigner pour que vous puissiez décider vous-même l'option qui comblera vos désirs et vos besoins.

Le propriétaire d'une agence d'assurance dans la région de Seattle est maître dans l'art de renseigner ses clients pour les aider à prendre des décisions dans leur plus grand intérêt. Plusieurs fois des clients en perspective viennent le voir pour obtenir une offre concurrentielle qui pourrait leur épargner de l'argent. Ses taux sont habituellement compétitifs mais l'un des secrets de sa réussite (shhh...ne le répétez pas) c'est qu'il conseille à ses clients de laisser tomber l'assurance dont ils n'ont pas besoin. Il fait des suggestions à ses clients qui lui font perdre de l'argent (à court terme de toute façon). À long terme, il recueille le fruit de son travail en étant franc avec ses clients au sujet de la couverture d'assurance dont ils ont besoin. Recommanderiez-vous un vendeur ou une vendeuse qui à vos intérêts à cœur ? Recommanderiez-vous une personne qui consent à sacrifier ses gains à court terme pour établir des relations à long terme ?

De quelle façon pouvez-vous et votre équipe de vente montrer à vos clients actuels et potentiels que vous désirez les aider à prendre des décisions qui leur seront profitables ? Les représentants de ventes peuvent apprendre de l'Association des Boy Scouts. Le règlement dit qu'un scout doit être digne de bonne foi, loyal, utile, amical, courtois aimable obéissant, gai, économe, brave, propre et déférent. Lorsque votre équipe rencontre des clients rappelez-leur le règlement des scouts surtout quand il s'agit d'être digne de confiance, utile, amical courtois et aimable. Ils remporteront plus de succès à chercher à aider leurs clients plutôt que de se soucier uniquement de leur vendre un produit.

Lift Vans Going Hi-tech with COSMO® Foldable Containers

CALGARY, AB – Inspirion Ventures has introduced a moving container that is designed to allow movers to meet today's financial challenges and navigate the country's expanse, while being environmentally responsible. The subsidiary of Calgary based NOVA Chemicals designed the COSMO Container Solution specifically for the moving industry. Its patent-pending design and polymer-based construction:

- Has innovative two-sided access
- Folds to one-third of erect height, in under five minutes for low cost repositioning and storage
- Requires no hand tools
- Can be secured and locked
- Provides the ability to load 30 folded containers onto a standard 53' trailer
- Withstands the rigors of long distance moves and bumps and bruises that occur in a warehouse
- Can be cleaned and sanitized between moves
- Is 100% recyclable
- Can be fitted for permanent moldable radio frequency identification (RFID) and global positioning system (GPS).

The COSMO Container provides movers with flexible alternative moving choices for less-than-truckload shipments such as for college students or senior citizens that frees line haul trucks up for larger, single destination moves – ultimately allowing them to reduce costs and grow their business.

CALGARY AB : Inspirion Ventures lance un nouveau conteneur, conçu pour permettre aux déménageurs de faire face aux défis financiers actuels et de sillonner tout le pays tout en étant respectueux de l'environnement. Cette filiale de NOVA Chemicals a mis au point le conteneur en polymère COSMO, spécifiquement destiné à l'industrie du déménagement. Ce caisson dont le brevet de conception est en instance offre :

- Deux côtés d'accès pratiques
- Se plie au tiers de sa pleine hauteur en moins de cinq minutes, ce qui optimise le rangement et minimise les coûts
- Ne nécessite aucun outil manuel
- Peut se verrouiller en toute sécurité
- Procure l'espace pour ranger 30 conteneurs pliés dans une remorque normale de 53 pi
- Résiste aux rigueurs des déménagements longue distance et aux heurts en entrepôt
- Peut être nettoyé et aseptisé entre les déménagements
- 100 % recyclable
- Adaptable par moulage pour l'installation de systèmes d'identification par radiofréquence (RFID) et de positionnement mondial (GPS).

Le conteneur COSMO procure une solution lorsqu'un camion n'est pas rempli à sa pleine capacité, comme dans le cas de déménagements d'étudiants universitaires ou de personnes âgées, ce qui libère les transporteurs longue distance et du fait, permet de réduire les coûts et d'accroître les affaires.

New Certified Overseas Mover Program

Q&A with John Levi

By Kim Biggar

THE Canadian Association of Movers recently launched the Certified Overseas Mover Program after being asked by Canadian international movers for programming specific to their interests. CAM established a committee to look at how to best meet the needs of this group; the Certified Overseas Mover Program is the result.

John Levi, President of CAM, answers questions about the new program.

1. In a nutshell, what is the Certified Overseas Mover Program and what is its purpose?

JOHN: The program was designed to identify reputable overseas movers – primarily Canadian movers that do moves to other countries, especially those beyond North America – to both other moving companies and consumers. It validates these movers in the international market.

2. Why was the program needed?

JOHN: CAM has over 30 international mover members. These movers are set up differently than movers that work just within Canada and so don't meet some of the requirements of CAM's other program, the Certified Canadian Mover Program. CAM was thus unable to recognize the reputable Canadian movers working in the international market; with our new program, we have rectified that.

3. How did the program come to be?

JOHN: In December 2009, Ramiro Quiros of Monarch Moving Systems and Anthony Soward of Brytor International Moving approached CAM about setting up a networking group for Canadian international movers. Just a month later, CAM's board of directors decided to establish the Certified Overseas Mover Program as a first step toward meeting needs of this group. A committee was formed – the International Committee – with Leonard Hoyt, CAM's vice chair, as committee chairman, and Ramiro and Anthony as members. The Committee began meeting in January of this year.

Pretty quickly, they developed a Code of Ethics, which is the basis of the program. All movers certified through the program commit to live by the Code, which requires that they honour contract terms, provide high-quality service and follow CAM's Overseas Standard Operating Procedures, among other things. In addition, it requires them to fulfill all obligations of CAM membership, to help other CAM mover members with their overseas moving requirements and to take part in the International Committee when possible.

The Committee developed a list of international moving terms to ensure that all CAM international mover members use common terminology. Likewise, the Standard Operating Procedures are meant to guarantee that certified movers are making use of the best practices of the international moving community.

In June 2010, CAM's board of directors approved the program.

4. How does a company qualify to be a Certified Overseas Mover?

JOHN: The program is open to any international mover willing to abide by the Code of Ethics.

5. How will the program provide value to other movers, in both the Canadian and international marketplaces?

JOHN: CAM's directors will review applications to the Certified Overseas Mover Program and decide on approvals, based on their knowledge of the applicants, as well, of course, as information in the application. No one is more familiar with movers' reputations than other movers; they hear the stories and know the players. Certification indicates that a mover is reputable. This gives other movers looking for an origin or destination partner a solid way to choose that partner and feel confident in the choice. For the certified movers themselves, this may mean increased business.

6. What about value to consumers?

JOHN: Again, certification shows that a mover is qualified, professional and experienced, recognized as such by the Canadian Association of Movers. People take comfort in choosing such a mover to care for their belongings in an international move.

7. What is the continuing role of the International Committee?

JOHN: Part of the Committee's mandate is to create a forum for international movers to integrate young people into the moving industry. We hope they'll be excited by this opportunity. Certainly, those responsible for getting this going were eager to start a dialogue with their colleagues. As well as providing networking opportunities, the Committee will look at the possibility of offering education or training sessions in the future.

For CAM itself, this is also a good development. Getting young people more involved will help sustain the organization and allow us to continue providing value to the moving industry.

More information about CAM's Certified Overseas Mover Program is available online, at www.mover.net/movers/programs/overseas.htm, or by contacting 905-848-6579, 1-866-860-0065 or admin@mover.net.

Le nouveau Programme de certification des déménageurs outre-mer

Par Kim Biggar

L'ASSOCIATION canadienne des déménageurs a lancé dernièrement un Programme de certification des déménageurs outre-mer suite à une demande de compagnies canadiennes de créer un programme qui reflète leurs intérêts. L'ACD a établi un comité pour examiner la façon de mieux servir leurs besoins. Ainsi est né ce nouveau programme.

John Levi, Président de l'ACD nous éclaire sur ce programme.

1. En bref, qu'entendez-vous par Programme de certification des déménageurs outre-mer et quel en est le but ?

JOHN : Le programme a été conçu pour faire reconnaître les membres sur le marché de l'outre-mer auprès des autres déménageurs et de leurs clients. Il s'agit principalement de compagnies canadiennes qui font des déménagements vers des pays à l'extérieur de l'Amérique du Nord. Le programme permet de les identifier sur le marché international.

2. Pourquoi ce programme est-il nécessaire ?

JOHN : L'ACD compte 30 membres internationaux. Ces déménageurs fonctionnent différemment des autres qui travaillent uniquement au Canada, et le Programme de certification des déménageurs canadiens ne reflète pas entièrement leurs fonctions. Il ne nous était pas possible de faire reconnaître la réputation des déménageurs qui œuvrent sur le marché international. Le nouveau programme vient corriger cette lacune.

3. Comment a-t-il été créé ?

JOHN : En décembre 2009, Ramiro Quiros de Monarch Moving Systems et

Anthony Soward de Brytor International Moving ont abordé l'ACD afin d'établir un groupe de réseautage des déménageurs internationaux. Un mois plus tard, le conseil d'administration a convenu d'offrir dans un premier temps, le Programme de certification des déménageurs outre-mer pour répondre aux besoins de ce segment du marché. Un comité a été formé – Le Comité des déménagements internationaux – dont Leonard Hoyt, vice président de l'ACD est président et Ramiro et Anthony sont membres. Le Comité a commencé ses rencontres en janvier de cette année.

En peu de temps ils ont conçu un code d'éthique sur lequel repose le programme. Tous les déménageurs certifiés s'engagent entre autres à respecter le code qui exige d'honorer les termes des contrats, de procurer des services haut de gamme, et de respecter les normes sur les méthodes d'exploitation à l'étranger. De plus, ils sont tenus de remplir les autres obligations d'appartenance à l'ACD, de soutenir d'autres membres à remplir les conditions de déménagements outre-mer et de participer au comité lorsque c'est possible.

Le Comité a conçu une liste de conditions de sorte que les membres du marché international de l'ACD utilisent un même langage. De cette façon les normes sur les méthodes d'exploitation à l'étranger assurent que les déménageurs certifiés utilisent les meilleures pratiques dans le secteur du déménagement à l'étranger.

Le conseil d'administration de l'ACD a adopté le programme en juin 2010.

4. Comment une compagnie peut-elle obtenir la certification ?

JOHN : Le programme s'étend à tout déménageur international qui se conforme au code d'éthique.

5. Comment ce programme peut-il offrir une valeur aux autres déménageurs, tant sur le marché canadien qu'international ?

JOHN : Les membres du conseil de l'ACD révisent les demandes d'admission au Programme de certification des déménageurs outre-mer et donnent leur approbation compte tenu des connaissances des demandeurs de même que de l'information sur la demande. Personne ne connaît si bien la réputation des déménageurs que leurs collègues. Ils entendent ce qui est dit et connaissent les joueurs. La certification fait foi de la réputation d'un déménageur. Cela procure aux autres déménageurs à la recherche d'un partenaire au point d'origine ou de destination, une façon sûre de choisir un partenaire et de se fier à leur choix.

Quant aux déménageurs certifiés, ils ont l'occasion d'accroître leur chiffre d'affaires.

6. Que dire de la valeur pour le consommateur ?

JOHN : À nouveau la certification assure au client de faire affaires à un déménageur qualifié et expérimenté, reconnu par l'Association canadienne des déménageurs. Les gens ont l'esprit tranquille quand ils savent qu'ils ont choisi un déménageur soucieux de leur patrimoine pour déménager à l'étranger.

7. Quel rôle ce comité continuera-t-il à jouer ?

JOHN : Le mandat du comité vise en partie à créer un forum pour les déménageurs internationaux et aussi à intégrer des jeunes dans l'industrie du déménagement. Nous espérons que cette occasion stimulera les intéressés. Il n'y a pas de doute que les responsables étaient impatients d'ouvrir un dialogue avec leurs collègues. En plus de procurer une occasion de faire du réseautage, ils pourront étudier la possibilité d'offrir des cours de formation plus tard.

Pour l'ACD il s'agit d'un pas dans la bonne direction. Inciter les jeunes à s'impliquer d'avantage aidera à soutenir cet organisme et permettra d'offrir de précieux services à l'industrie du déménagement.

2010 Annual Conference Times are changing!...Are you ready?

CAM's 2010 ANNUAL CONFERENCE, November 14–16, 2010, poses the challenge: "Times are changing!" and asks the question: "Are you ready?"

- Did you know that the times are changing?
- Do you know how much they are changing?
- Do you know what's changing?
- Do you have a strategy, a plan and the tools to meet the changes?

Let's apply some numbers to how much things have changed since 2000:

	2000	2010
Facebook users	0	500 million
Twitter (tweets/day)	0	50 million
Active blogs	12 thousand	141 million
Daily Google searches	100 million	2 billion
Daily letters mailed	208 million	176 million
Daily emails	12 billion	247 billion
Text messages	400 thousand	4.5 billion
Hard-drive storage	$10 per GB	$0.06 per GB
Time spent online	2.7 hours/week	18 hours/week
Daily newspapers	1500	1300
iTunes downloads	0	10 billion

Do these numbers affect you? You bet! They talk about who we are, how we do business, how we communicate with each other, and how we reach out to our marketplace!

Canada's population mix is changing with an increasing number of the Baby-Boomers retiring and a new generation of web-savvy youth entering the marketplace.

CAM's 2010 Annual Conference will address these issues and more with sessions on developing a business strategy, managing moves for seniors, social networking on the internet, defining and marketing to the new generation, Canada's economy, technology for movers, working in Western Canada, and diversifying into record storage.

We even have a session on how to use the information you receive at this conference!

CAM's 2010 Annual Conference is all about getting the information you need to understand the dynamics of the world we work in and the people who are our customers and provide you with tools that you can use.

Visit CAM's website at www.mover.net/conf2010 or contact the CAM office to register.
