FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

North American Van Lines Canada Names New Director of Agency Development

Kevin Devereux Joins North American's Leadership Team to Help Execute Company's Growth Strategy

EDMONTON, August 3, 2005 – North American Van Lines Canada, an international moving services provider, announced today that Kevin Devereux has joined its senior leadership team as Director of Agency Development. Devereux comes to North American from BlueBird Relocation Systems and The Office Mover, a long-standing northAmerican agent, where he was Managing Director of the Toronto branch.

“Kevin brings a wealth of industry experience to this organization. He will be extremely effective in working with our associates and agents to enhance our service offerings and grow the network across Canada,” said Michael A. Johnston, President and General Manager of SIRVA Canada. “His three decades of strong operational experience in a number of agency positions uniquely qualify him for his new role at North American.”

Prior to his most recent role with BlueBird, Devereux began as a dispatcher for a Montreal agent and owned his own agency from the 1980s through March 2002.

“I am extremely excited to join the northAmerican team, assist in the growth of the agency family and build on the success of our strong brand,” said Devereux. “I am ready for the new challenges this position will bring and I look forward to working with the North American agent family and my new colleagues.”
