Chairman's Message/Message du président du conseil

CAN ANYONE use a vacation? As you read this, the heat of the summer has faded and the leaves are starting to change colour. Most of us are tying up the loose ends of a busy moving season and are in need of a little R & R.

In mid-September, your Board of Directors reconvened after a summer break, to discuss the status of our Association, review our committees' activities and prepare functional reports. CAM is represented by six committees (Financial, Membership, Supplier, International, Marketing & Internet and Conference) and each is chaired by an experienced industry leader and populated by moving professionals from coast to coast. The committees make recommendations to the Board of Directors who in turn set Association policies. I want to thank those who give of their time and wisdom; without their contributions we would not succeed.

In May our President Paul Leader advised the Association that he would be resigning (and riding off into the Southampton sunset). For the past couple years, Paul has been the leading voice of our Association. His industry experience, government knowledge and affiliation, commitment to growth and work ethic have taken CAM to another level. We have experienced a 10 percent increase in membership since Paul took over as President and he leaves us in a great financial position. On behalf of the entire membership, I would like to express our sincere gratitude for a job well done.

Shortly after Paul gave his notice, the Association formed a Succession Committee to hire a replacement President. We interviewed applicants from across Canada and the U.S. We are pleased to announce that Patrick Greaney from Calgary will be our new President. Patrick brings with him a resumé filled with years of industry experience. We are thrilled to have him as our new leader.

For the past number of years, CAM has been actively lobbying the Canada Border Service Agency to allow movers shipping household effects into Canada to clear shipments for customers. Canada is one of three countries throughout the world (Venezuela and Samoa are the other two) that fail to permit movers to clear customers goods without the customer present. It's a huge inconvenience to both movers and our customers. Years ago it was common practice for movers to clear incoming shipments, providing the paperwork was in order. Canada is a large country with individuals having to travel great distances to clear their belongings. On behalf of movers and customers, we will continue to lobby the CBSA to

TOUTS ONT DROIT à de petites vacances, pas vrai? Au moment où vous lirez ces lignes, la chaleur de l'été se sera atténuée et les feuillages se parent de leurs coloris d'automne. La plupart d'entre nous s'affairent à régler les derniers détails d'une saison de déménagement fort occupée et auraient bien besoin d'un peu de repos et de détente.

À la mi-septembre, votre conseil d'administration s'est réuni après une pause estivale afin de discuter du statut de notre association, de revoir les activités de nos divers comités et de préparer les différents rapports annuels. L'ACD est représentée par six comités (des Finances, des adhésions, des fournisseurs, International, Marketing & Internet et le comité responsable de la conférence annuelle) et chacun de ces comités est dirigé par un leader d'expérience issu de l'industrie et est formé de déménageurs professionnels provenant de toutes les régions du Canada. Les comités soumettent des recommandations au Conseil d'administration qui, à son tour, établit les politiques de l'association. Je tiens à remercier ceux qui ont consacré du temps ainsi que leurs précieux conseils; sans leur contribution, nous ne pourrions pas réussir.

Au mois de mai, notre président Paul Leader a informé l'association qu'il souhaitait remettre sa démission. Au cours des dernières années, Paul a été le principal porte-parole de notre association. Son expérience de l'industrie, sa connaissance et ses liens avec l'appareil gouvernemental, son engagement ainsi que son éthique de travail ont fait progresser l'ACD. Nous avons connu une augmentation de 10 % au niveau de nos membres depuis que Paul a accédé à la présidence et il laisse notre association dans une excellente situation financière. Au nom de l'ensemble de nos membres, je tiens à lui exprimer notre plus sincère gratitude pour l'excellence du travail accompli.

Peu de temps après la réception de l'avis de Paul, l'association a formé un Comité de transition afin de procéder à l'embauche d'un nouveau président. Nous avons interviewé des candidats provenant de multiples endroits au Canada et aux États-Unis. Nous sommes heureux d'annoncer que Patrick Greaney de Calgary deviendra notre nouveau président. Patrick possède un CV fort de plusieurs années d'expérience dans notre industrie. Nous sommes enchantés de l'avoir avec nous à titre de nouveau leader.

Au cours des dernières années, l'ACD a mené des activités de lobbying auprès de l'Agence des services frontaliers du Canada afin de permettre aux déménageurs expédiant des biens ménagers vers le Canada de

President's Message/Message du président

THESE are my last few months as President & CEO of CAM. Personal commitments are such that I must step down at the end of the year. I must tell you that the last two years have been fantastic. I have travelled to many industry conferences in North America and met quite a number of fine people and hopefully, through these contacts, increased the visibility of our Association. Our membership continues to grow and this month we passed a milestone and exceeded 400 members. By year-end I am positive that our membership count will be even greater.

I encourage you to support your Board of Directors. The time and energy they expend for the good of the Association goes unrecognized. It is only through their constant efforts that we can keep up with the ever-changing times. A selection committee comprised of CAM Directors has already found my replacement. I am proud to say that all of the applicants were from within our industry. This, in itself, is a testament to our members' passion for this business. I have known my successor Patrick Greaney for almost 40 years and I can tell you that he brings a wealth of experience to the table. Not only has he worked within the industry but also on the other side as a client representing the Federal Government. You will be well served with Patrick at the helm.

In addition, your Board of Directors in the last few months endorsed two new value-added programs that will no doubt offer huge benefits for the membership.

The 2016 Conference is back in Toronto and our lineup of speakers is awesome. Phil Soper of Brookfield Real Estate Services will kick off the program and no doubt will have valuable information to share with us about the state of the national housing market and the relationship between the moving industry and realtors. David Bradley of the Canadian Trucking Alliance and the Ontario Trucking Association is also scheduled for a return engagement and will talk about the parallels between the trucking industry and the moving sector and, more importantly, the labour challenges we all face. David will be retiring in December and this will be one of his last speeches as head of OTA/CTA.

As of the writing of this message, our attendance for this year's golf tournament at Lionhead Golf Club in Brampton has already capped 112 participants – our highest turnout in a very long time. Congratulations to everyone who attended.

Change is inevitable and as our industry proceeds through the twenty-first century there is no doubt in

JE VIS mes derniers mois à titre de Président-directeur général de l'ACD. Mes engagements personnels m'obligent à quitter mes fonctions à la fin de cette année. J'ai assisté à plusieurs conférences de l'industrie en Amérique du Nord et j'ai eu l'opportunité de rencontrer beaucoup de personnes de grande qualité et j'espère que, grâce à ces contacts, la visibilité de notre association s'est accrue. Le nombre de nos membres est en croissance continue et, ce mois-ci, nous avons passé un jalon important en excédant le nombre de 400 membres. D'ici à la fin de l'année, j'ai confiance que le nombre de nos membres pourrait être encore plus élevé.

Je vous encourage à bien supporter votre conseil d'administration. Le temps et l'énergie qu'ils investissent pour le bien-être de l'association passent souvent inaperçus. C'est seulement grâce à leurs efforts constants que nous pouvons être à même de bien suivre l'évolution des choses dans notre industrie. Un comité de transition formé de directeurs de l'ACD a déjà sélectionné mon remplaçant. Je suis fier de dire que tous les candidats provenaient de notre industrie. Ce fait en lui-même se veut une reconnaissance de la passion de nos membres pour cette industrie. Je connais mon successeur, Patrick Greaney, depuis plus de 40 ans et je peux certifier qu'il apporte tout un bagage d'expérience avec lui. Non seulement a-t-il travaillé dans l'industrie, mais également, de l'autre côté, à titre de client représentant le gouvernement fédéral. Vous serez bien servi avec Patrick à la barre.

De plus, au cours des derniers mois, votre conseil d'administration a endossé la mise en place de deux nouveaux programmes à valeur ajoutée qui offriront assurément d'importants avantages à nos membres.

La Conférence 2016 est de retour à Toronto et notre brochette de conférenciers est impressionnante. Phil Soper de Brookfield Real Estate Services débutera ce programme et celui-ci aura assurément de l'information pertinente à partager avec nous relativement à la situation du marché immobilier au Canada et à la relation d'affaires entre l'industrie du déménagement et les agents immobiliers. David Bradley, de la Canadian Trucking Alliance et de l'Ontario Trucking Association, sera de retour afin de traiter des parallèles entre l'industrie du camionnage et le secteur du déménagement et, plus important encore, des défis de la main d'œuvre auxquels nous sommes tous confrontés. David se retirera au mois de décembre et il s'agira d'un de ses derniers discours à la tête de l'OTA/CTA.

Mover for a Day: Learning the Business of Moving

By Glenn Meyer

I felt I needed experience to understand how mistakes can happen, and to be able to explain this to an underwriter to help them understand what a mover faces every day.

FOR THE PAST 17 YEARS I have been writing insurance policies to cover the risk needs of movers, right from one-truck operations to 100-truck fleets. After working with hundreds of movers right across the country, you might think I have seen it all, but rarely does a day end that I have not learned something new about insurance, claims or near claims involving the moving industry. I think that's why I love working with movers and respect the people who make it their career – the risks and challenges they face every day are more than any other industry I've encountered and that, for me, is a challenge that never gets boring or routine.

As brokers who specialize in creating insurance solutions for the moving industry, I often find myself advocating their insurance needs and interests to the largest insurance markets in Canada. These markets ask us questions about the operations, processes, contractual agreements, valuation options, bill of lading agreements, waivers and job-site risk management procedures that all involve movers, customers, and insurance.

I feel confident that we understand the business of moving well, but like anything, there is always more to learn.

We need to be able to paint a picture for underwriters to help them relate to you, empathize with the demands you face, the conditions movers work with, their relations and interactions with customers and Van Lines, circumstances that must be overcome and of course the risks movers face every day on the job and on the road. When claims happen, insurance companies often ask, "Glenn, how did this happen?" From an insurance standpoint, we feel we have the most competitive and comprehensive insurance program in the industry, handwritten to cover anything a mover may face, but how can we confidently say we truly understand a mover's real world from our comfy office seat and feel qualified to speak on their behalf to the insurance world... without some real life experience?

Over the past year I endeavoured to learn more about the risks and exposures that movers face on the job first-hand with the help of some of our business partners. I contacted a number of our partners including Taylor Moving & Storage, Armstrong Moving and Storage, TWO MEN AND A TRUCK® Canada and Braymore Piano Movers & Crane Services and asked them to place me in the area of an office, commercial move, residential/home move, condo move, international move, full-pack job, high-value move and crane/hoist move. The mission was to place ourselves in as many real-life physical and administration positions that movers face every day, without quitting our full time job! I wanted to experience the job in different location environments, seasons, weather conditions and temperatures as I know many mistakes and judgement errors occur from heat exposure, fatigue and hunger. I felt I needed this kind of experience to understand how mistakes can happen, and to be able to explain this to an underwriter to help them understand what a mover faces every day.

I bought my first car on my 16th birthday and got a part-time job with Day & Ross and Same Day Courier for the next five years to help me pay for the insurance and mechanical repairs to keep the car on the road. My job was to unload trucks by hand onto a sorting conveyor belt as fast as physically possible. In the summer, some of those trucks would be 40 degrees C inside and I remember the toll it took out of me and how quickly I would feel the effects. One of my recent 'Mover for a Day' experiences found me working on a 30+-degree C day in an overseas shipping container! That brought back many of my Day & Ross memories and reminded me that being a mover every day must be one of the toughest jobs out there. The profit earned from doing it for a living is coveted and demands the best value on any of the products and services that money is spent on, including insurance.

My on-the-job experiences so far have allowed me to see some of the claims that happen first-hand as well as the potential for injuries that occur in the blink of an eye. One of the crews I worked with wanted to please a customer who was supposed to have cleared out a metal filing cabinet prior to moving day. When we arrived it was still full in the basement office, but the guys decided to move it full to save the customer the work. About half way up the carpeted basement stairs, one of the guys pulling lost his grip and the cabinet slid down four or five stairs, pushing and pinning the other mover against the wall at the bottom of the staircase. The force and momentum of the cabinet could have easily broken a leg or worse! Fortunately the mover was not hurt but did leave a butt imprint through a layer of drywall. The customer was very empathic and did not say a word about the damage. He knew he was asking a lot of the mover to attempt to move that cabinet full and he saw first-hand why the movers hesitated to try it and how easily someone could have been badly hurt.

I also had the chance to experience inventory procedures, and I can certainly understand the potential for mistakes to occur during this process if it was not done just right. It was great to see the technology available to movers today that can save time and virtually eliminate the potential for the mysterious disappearance of a customer's goods.

Another great experience was walking through a customer's home prior to starting the move and identifying prior damage to the home and goods to be moved.

I could go on and on but, simply put, these experiences and many more have given me a much better understanding of the industry and the challenges faced by movers on a daily basis. Our Mover's Team has committed to continue to pursue more on-the-job experiences over the next couple of years with other movers who feel they have something we should see or do that would further our understanding of the industry. I playfully like to call this "Take your Broker to Work Day!"

Déménageur d'un jour: Découvrir le monde du déménagement

Par Glenn Meyer

Je ressentais le besoin de vivre une telle expérience afin de bien comprendre comment de telles erreurs peuvent survenir et de pouvoir ainsi expliquer cette situation à un souscripteur d'assurance pour qu'il comprenne mieux ce à quoi est confronté un déménageur sur une base quotidienne.

AU COURS DES 17 DERNIÈRES ANNÉES, j'ai rédigé de multiples polices d'assurance servant à couvrir les risques des déménageurs, que ce soit pour les exploitations d'un seul camion ou pour les flottes de plus de 100 unités. Après avoir travaillé avec des centaines de déménageurs dans l'ensemble du Canada, vous pourriez croire que j'ai tout vu, mais il est rare qu'une journée passe sans que j'ai appris quelque chose de nouveau relativement aux assurances, aux réclamations ou à des problématiques quelconques impliquant l'industrie du déménagement. Je crois que c'est la raison pour laquelle j'adore travailler avec les déménageurs et que je respecte grandement les personnes qui en font une carrière – les risques et les défis auxquels elles sont confrontées quotidiennement sont plus nombreux que dans toute autre industrie que j'ai pu côtoyer et, à mon avis, il s'agit d'un défi qui n'est jamais ennuyeux ou routinier.

À titre de courtier se spécialisant dans la mise en place de solutions d'assurance pour l'industrie du déménagement, je me suis souvent retrouvé dans une situation où je devais défendre leurs besoins en assurance et leurs intérêts auprès des plus importants marchés d'assurances au Canada. Ces marchés nous posent des questions au sujet de ces exploitations, des processus impliqués, des ententes contractuelles, des options d'évaluations, des accords légaux figurant sur les connaissements, des renoncements et des procédures de gestion du risque sur le site de travail qui impliquent les déménageurs, les clients et l'assurance. Je suis confiant que nous comprenons bien l'industrie du déménagement mais, comme toute autre chose, on en apprend toujours plus.

Il nous faut pouvoir dépeindre une bonne image de l'industrie auprès des souscripteurs d'assurance afin de les aider à mieux vous comprendre, à manifester de la sympathie en regard des demandes auxquelles vous faites face, des conditions dans lesquelles travaillent les déménageurs, de leurs relations et interactions avec les clients et les compagnies de transport, des circonstances auxquelles il faut remédier et, bien sûr, face aux risques rencontrés chaque jour par les déménageurs, au travail et sur la route. Lorsque des réclamations sont faites, les compagnies d'assurance demandent souvent : "Glenn, comment est-ce arrivé?". Du point de vue de l'assurance, nous croyons que nous offrons le programme d'assurance le plus concurrentiel et complet de l'industrie, rédigé afin de couvrir tous les risques auxquels est confronté un déménageur, mais comment pouvons-nous affirmer que nous comprenons parfaitement bien le monde réel du déménageur à partir de nos confortables fauteuils de bureau et nous considérer qualifiés pour parler en leur nom face au monde de l'assurance... sans réelle expérience de vie?

Au cours de la dernière année, je me suis efforcé d'en apprendre plus au sujet des risques et du degré d'exposition auxquels sont confrontés les déménageurs directement au travail avec l'assistance de certains de nos partenaires d'affaires. J'ai contacté quelques partenaires incluant Taylor Moving & Storage, Armstrong Moving and Storage, TWO MEN AND A TRUCK® Canada ainsi que Braymore Piano Movers & Crane Services et leur ai demandé de me placer en situation de travail dans des situations au bureau ou dans le cadre d'un déménagement commercial, d'un déménagement résidentiel, d'un déménagement de condo, d'un déménagement international, d'un emploi d'emballeur pour un service complet d'emballage, d'un déménagement de grande valeur et d'un déménagement avec grue ou pont élévateur. Notre mission était de nous placer dans certaines positions administratives, exigeantes au point de vue physique et qui simulaient bien les tâches auxquelles sont affectés les déménageurs à chaque jour et ce, sans laisser de côté notre emploi régulier! Je désirais expérimenter ce travail dans le cadre de différents environnements de travail, en différentes saisons et sous des conditions climatiques et des températures variées, compte tenu que je sais très bien que plusieurs fautes et erreurs de jugement surviennent en raison d'une exposition à la chaleur, à la fatigue et à la faim. Je ressentais le besoin de vivre une telle expérience afin de bien comprendre comment de telles erreurs peuvent survenir et de pouvoir ainsi expliquer cette situation à un souscripteur d'assurance pour qu'il comprenne mieux ce à quoi est confronté un déménageur sur une base quotidienne.

J'ai acheté ma première voiture à l'occasion de mon 16<sup>e</sup> anniversaire et j'ai obtenu un emploi à temps partiel chez Day & Ross et chez Same Day Courier pour les cinq années suivantes afin de pouvoir défrayer les coûts d'assurance et de réparations mécaniques pour pouvoir maintenir cette auto sur la route. Mon travail était de décharger les camions manuellement sur un tapis roulant de convoyeur de tri aussi rapidement que c'était physiquement possible. En été, certains de ces camions pouvaient afficher une température de 40 °C à l'intérieur et je me rappelle toute l'énergie que ça me demandait et les effets que je ressentais. Lors de l'une de mes plus récentes expériences de "déménageur d'un jour", je me suis retrouvé à travailler lors d'une journée où le mercure affichait plus de 30 °C à l'intérieur d'un conteneur d'expédition maritime! Ceci a ramené plusieurs souvenirs de Day & Ross à ma mémoire et m'a rappelé qu'être un déménageur dans la vie de tous les jours peut constituer assurément l'un des emplois les plus difficiles. Le profit que l'on retire dans ce métier est fort convoité, bien qu'il exige d'offrir aux clients la meilleure valeur possible de produits et services, incluant l'assurance.

Jusqu'à maintenant, mes expériences acquises sur les lieux de travail m'ont permis de constater sur place quelques-unes des réclamations qui peuvent survenir, aussi bien que les diverses possibilités de blessures qui peuvent se produire en un clin d'œil. Les membres de l'une des équipes avec lesquels j'ai travaillé ont voulu faire plaisir à un client qui devait avoir vidé un classeur en métal avant la journée du déménagement. Lorsque nous sommes arrivés, il était encore plein et se trouvait dans le bureau du sous-sol, mais les gars ont décidé de le déménager avec tout son contenu afin d'épargner du travail au client. À mi-chemin dans l'escalier du sous-sol recouvert de tapis, l'un des équipiers qui tenait le classeur l'a échappé et celui-ci glissa environ quatre ou cinq marches, repoussant et coinçant l'autre déménageur contre le mur au bas de l'escalier. L'accélération et le mouvement du classeur auraient pu aisément causer le bris d'une jambe ou pire encore! Heureusement, le déménageur n'a pas été blessé, bien qu'il laissât tout de même une empreinte de son postérieur à travers un mur. Le client a été très empathique et n'a rien mentionné au sujet des dommages. Il savait qu'il en avait demandé beaucoup au déménageur pour essayer de déménager le classeur plein et il a bien constaté pourquoi les déménageurs hésitaient à le faire et comment quelqu'un aurait pu facilement être sévèrement blessé.

J'ai également eu la chance de vivre l'expérience des procédures d'inventaire, et je peux facilement comprendre les risques d'erreurs possibles qui peuvent se produire au cours de ce processus s'il n'est pas bien effectué. Ce fut une excellente chose de constater la technologie mise à la disposition des déménageurs de nos jours et qui peut permettre d'épargner beaucoup de temps tout en éliminant virtuellement le risque que survienne une mystérieuse disparition de certains biens du client.

Une autre formidable expérience fut celle de marcher dans la résidence d'un client avant de débiter le déménagement et d'identifier les dommages existants dans la maison ainsi que les biens à déménager.

Je pourrais continuer ainsi mais, dit simplement, ces expériences et plusieurs autres m'ont apporté une meilleure compréhension de l'industrie et des défis auxquels font face les déménageurs sur une base quotidienne. Notre équipe de déménageurs s'est engagée à poursuivre de telles expériences sur les lieux de travail au cours des prochaines années avec d'autres déménageurs qui considèrent vivre des situations que nous devrions voir ou expérimenter et qui contribueraient à accroître notre compréhension de cette industrie. Je m'amuse à appeler ça "Invitez votre courtier à une journée de travail!"

pouvoir dédouaner les expéditions au nom de leurs clients. Le Canada est l'un des trois pays à travers le monde (le Venezuela et les Samoa sont les deux autres) qui ne permettent toujours pas aux déménageurs de procéder au dédouanement des biens ménagers de leurs clients sans que les clients concernés ne soient présents. Il s'agit là d'un inconvénient majeur à la fois pour les déménageurs et nos clients. Il y a plusieurs années, il s'agissait d'une pratique courante pour les déménageurs de dédouaner les expéditions arrivant au Canada, à la condition que la documentation nécessaire était conforme. Le Canada est un pays étendu dans lequel les personnes doivent voyager sur de longues distances afin de procéder elles-mêmes au dédouanement de leurs biens. Au nom des déménageurs et de leurs clients, nous enten-dons poursuivre notre lobbyisme auprès de l'ASFC afin de réussir à apporter les changements nécessaires à la réglementation.

Fire in Fort McMurray: The Impact on Local Movers

By Kim Biggar

Make sure you're prepared for a disaster by having all important information stored electronically, with copies off site.

THE SUCCESSFUL EVACUATION on May 3 of 88,000 people from Fort McMurray was an enormous accomplishment. A fast-moving fire gave residents little time to gather their families and pets, some clothes and a few prized possessions before joining the line of cars leaving the town, surrounded by fire.

At 12:30 that day, Melissa LeBlanc and her colleagues left work, advised to listen to the news and prepare to leave the city if necessary. Less than three hours later, residents were ordered to evacuate, and Melissa, Sales Consultant for Matco Moving Solutions, was on the road to Spruce Grove, near Edmonton. She had enough clothes for a few days, her wedding album, her dogs and little else. She didn't expect to be gone for more than a couple of days. After staying five days with family, Melissa and her husband rented a townhouse in Spruce Grove for two months; they were finally able to get back into their home in Fort McMurray on June 21.

For more than a month, between May 3 and the beginning of June, almost no one was in the city at all. Emergency responders and, later, essential-service providers were on site; otherwise, the city was empty.

Connie Shields, President of MIB Moving Inc., returned early to the city as part of a team of essential-service providers. On May 22, she began working with the local Sears store to help organize for the delivery of some 15,000 fridges. (With power off in the city for weeks, fridges – as well as washing machines with wet clothes and dishwashers with dirty dishes – became contaminated with mould; crews in full hazmat gear were required to dispose of old fridges when people returned to their homes. Once residents were back and ready to receive their fridges, crews worked 12 to 14 hours a day seven days a week to deliver them. As of mid-August, deliveries were still ongoing.) “It was a very strange time,” says Connie. “The streets were empty, and the smell of smoke was still very much in the air. While some areas looked good, the devastation was hard to comprehend; it seemed like we had walked into a war-torn city in some areas.”

Crews in HazMat gear cleaned out fridges contaminated with rotten food, mold spores, etc. so they could be removed to the landfill. • Équipes portant des équipements de protection contre les matières dangereuses et nettoyant des réfrigérateurs contaminés par de la nourriture avariée, des spores de moisissure et autres, afin qu'ils puissent être déplacés vers des sites d'enfouissement.

Essential-service providers were housed together at MacDonald Island Park, a community recreational and social centre. “Nothing was open in town, so we had to eat at a camp kitchen that was set up,” says Connie. “The meals were good and, thank god, they had a Tim Horton’s trailer, too.” Workers slept on cots after putting in 12-to-18-hour shifts getting the city ready for the return of other residents.

In B.C. when the fire swept through Fort McMurray, Gloria Varney, President of Northern Plains Moving & Transport Ltd., was fortunate not to have to participate in the frightening evacuation. The fire reached within 50 feet of her home; it destroyed two sheds on her property. Gloria’s grandson lost his house in the fire; he’s now living in a camper in her backyard.

Gloria’s company, Northern Plains, also sustained a physical loss: a 48-foot moving van full of packing materials and old company files. Worse, the company’s long-distance driver, who lost almost all of his belongings in the fire, chose not to return to Fort McMurray. Losing him, along with a second employee who also opted against going back, is a bigger challenge for the company than the loss of its van, even with all of the files it contained. (Having lost the information, albeit old, in the files, Gloria advises that other movers make sure they’re prepared for a disaster by having all important information stored electronically, with copies off site.)

MIB Moving lost two moving trucks in the fire. Learning of this, several employees left their homes to save other trucks that were still accessible. “Upon arriving in the Edmonton area,” says Connie, “they spent the first weeks after the fire volunteering with the three trucks, transporting needed supplies to evacuee centres. Witnessing their commitment to volunteering at a time when they were in need (a couple of them lost their homes and everything they own) brought me to my knees.”

About 2,400 homes were destroyed in the fire; many others were damaged to some degree. While a lot of business facilities were saved, their product inventories weren’t necessarily spared. Smoke caused a lot of spoilage; even in early August, three months after the fire, Fort McMurray’s grocery and drug stores were still operating with understocked shelves.

■ Life — and Moving-Business Operations — After the Fire

In early June, Matco had reopened its office, although most of its employees had not yet returned to the city. Of all of the moves it had scheduled to do in May, only one was cancelled; the others were re-scheduled starting in June. Although it took no physical damage in the fire, the company had a significant loss of business, says Melissa, having a financial impact on employees, as well. One employee left his job, moving out of the city. Another, who lost everything in the fire, found getting back to work a welcome way to stay busy and focus on things other than her loss. The company didn't begin to get back to normal, says Melissa, until mid-August.

MIB Moving was able to make its first move on June 2, almost a full month after the fire forced the evacuation of the city. Many of the moves that had been scheduled for May couldn't be rebooked; the customers had lost their homes and belongings. In July and August, business picked up; lots of people were leaving the city, while others were returning from evacuation with a truckload of goods purchased to replace smoke-damaged items. Like Matco and Northern Plains, MIB lost a few employees who chose to leave the city after losing their homes. Filling those positions will be a challenge, says Connie, especially with all of the construction jobs that are expected to be available as the city rebuilds.

Gloria says that some of the customers her company is currently serving are leaving Fort McMurray for good. Even if they want to remain employed in the city, they don't want to live there, she says. Instead, they'll commute in and out of the city for work.

Demolition and debris removal in the city continue. Connie anticipates that it will take up to 10 years for the city to be fully rebuilt. Gloria agrees: "I don't think the city will be back to normal for a long time." Restricted areas remain, where few people other than residents can enter. "They're horrifying to see," says Connie.

■ The Good, the Bad and the Ugly

Evacuating during the fire was the scariest thing Melissa has experienced. "It was amazing, though," she says, "to see how calm and kind people were, looking after each other, letting people in on the road." Further, says Connie, "businesses that were normally in direct competition were working side by side, with a comradery that was unprecedented. It was an outstanding experience to be a part of."

Another good: Newfoundland's Domestic Moving & Storage transported packages in late May from Newfoundland to evacuees for free.

“We’ve moved a lot of Newfoundlanders and Labradorians back and forth to Fort McMurray over the years,” says Martin LeDrew, co-owner of the company. They were happy to “give back” to those in need after the fire.

Not so good is the ongoing struggle many are having with insurance companies and government red tape. “Morale was great at first,” says Connie. “But now people are getting frustrated.” And, many people remain without somewhere of their own to live. Connie has nine people living in her house, having made room for some of those with nowhere else to go.

Among the “ugly” things happening since the fire is the arrival in the city of more rogue movers, hoping to capitalize, says Connie, on the devastation there. “People are desperate and now, more than ever, the lowest price is what they are looking for, not realizing that means compromising what little they have left. It is really sad to hear some of the horrible stories over the last few weeks.” ■

Incendie à Fort McMurray: Les impacts chez les déménageurs locaux

Par Kim Biggar

Soyez prêt à faire face à un désastre de ce genre en entreposant toutes leurs informations importantes sur support informatique, avec des copies de sauvegarde dans des emplacements éloignés.

L'ÉVACUATION RÉUSSIE de 88 000 personnes de Fort McMurray, le 3 mai dernier, a représenté un accomplissement remarquable. Un incendie qui évoluait rapidement n'a laissé que peu de temps aux habitants pour rassembler leurs familles et leurs animaux de compagnie, quelques vêtements et quelques biens précieux avant de rejoindre la file d'automobiles qui quittaient la ville entourée par le feu.

À 12 h 30, ce jour-là, Melissa LeBlanc et ses collègues quittèrent le travail, une fois informés qu'ils devaient écouter les nouvelles et se préparer à quitter la ville, si nécessaire. Moins de trois heures plus tard, les citoyens ont reçu l'ordre d'évacuer, et Melissa, conseillère en vente chez Matco Moving Solutions, se retrouvait sur la route allant vers Spruce Grove, près d'Edmonton. Elle avait suffisamment de vêtements pour quelques jours, ses photos de mariage, ses chiens et quelques autres articles. Elle ne s'attendait pas à être partie pour plus de quelques jours. Après être demeurée cinq jours avec sa famille, Melissa et son mari louèrent une maison en rangée à Spruce Grove pour deux mois; ils purent finalement retourner dans leur maison à Fort McMurray le 21 juin.

Pendant plus d'un mois, entre le 3 mai et le début de juin, il n'y avait presque personne dans la ville. Les intervenants en situation d'urgence et, plus tard, les fournisseurs de services essentiels étaient sur place; sinon, la ville était déserte.

Connie Shields, présidente de MIB Moving Inc., retourna plus tôt dans la ville car elle faisait partie d'une équipe de fournisseurs de services essentiels. Le 22 mai, elle commença à travailler avec le magasin Sears local afin d'aider à organiser la livraison de quelque 15 000 réfrigérateurs. (En raison de la panne de courant qui dura des semaines dans la ville, les réfrigérateurs – ainsi que les machines à laver contenant du linge mouillé et les lave-vaisselle contenant des plats souillés – ont tous été contaminés par la moisissure; des équipes portant des équipements de protection contre les matières dangereuses furent requises pour disposer de ces vieux réfrigérateurs lorsque les gens retournaient dans leur maison. Une fois les citoyens de retour et prêts à recevoir leur réfrigérateur, des équipes ont travaillé entre 12 et 14 heures par jour, sept jours par semaine, pour effectuer les livraisons. En date de la mi-août, les livraisons se poursuivaient toujours.) « Les rues étaient désertes, et l'odeur de fumée était encore bien présente dans l'air. Bien que certains secteurs semblaient adéquats, la dévastation demeurait incompréhensible; dans certains secteurs, c'était comme si on marchait dans une ville dévastée par la guerre. »

Les fournisseurs de services essentiels habitaient ensemble au MacDonald Island Park, un centre communautaire récréatif et social. « Il n'y avait rien d'ouvert en ville, nous devons donc prendre nos repas à une cuisine de campagne qui avait été mise en place. », mentionne Connie. « Les repas étaient bons et, dieu merci, il y avait également une remorque Tim Horton. » Les travailleurs dormaient sur des lits de camp après avoir effectué des quarts de travail de 12 à 18 heures afin de préparer la ville en vue du retour des autres habitants.

En C.-B., tandis que l'incendie ravageait Fort McMurray, Gloria Varney, présidente de Northern Plains Moving & Transport Ltd., se considérait chanceuse de ne pas avoir à participer à cette effrayante évacuation. L'incendie s'est retrouvé à moins de 50 pieds de sa maison; il a détruit deux hangars sur sa propriété. Le petit-fils de Gloria perdit sa maison lors de l'incendie; il demeure maintenant dans une caravane installée dans son arrière-cour.

L'entreprise de Gloria, Northern Plains, a également subi une perte physique : un camion de déménagement de 48 pieds rempli de matériel d'emballage et de vieux dossiers de la compagnie. Pire encore, le conducteur de camion sur longue-distance de l'entreprise, ayant perdu presque tous ses biens personnels dans l'incendie, a décidé de ne pas retourner à Fort McMurray. Sa perte ainsi que celle d'un deuxième employé représentaient un plus grand défi pour l'entreprise que la perte de son camion, même avec tous les dossiers que celui-ci contenait. ces dossiers, Gloria avisa les autres déménageurs de se tenir prêt à faire face à un désastre de ce genre en entreposant toutes leurs informations importantes sur support informatique, avec des copies de sauvegarde dans des emplacements éloignés.)

MIB Moving a perdu deux camions de déménagement dans l'incendie. À cette nouvelle, plusieurs employés quittèrent leurs maisons pour sauver d'autres camions qui demeuraient accessibles. « En arrivant dans la région d'Edmonton, », indique Connie, « ils ont été volontaires, au cours des semaines suivant l'incendie, pour conduire les trois camions en transportant les fournitures nécessaires pour les centres d'évacués. J'étais émue de constater leur engagement de se porter volontaires à un moment où leurs services étaient grandement requis (certains d'entre eux ont perdu leur maison et tout ce qu'ils possédaient). »

Environ 2 400 résidences ont été détruites dans l'incendie; plusieurs autres ont été endommagées à divers degrés. Bien que beaucoup de sites d'entreprises aient été épargnés, leurs inventaires de produits n'y ont pas échappé nécessairement. La fumée a causé beaucoup de dégâts; même au début du mois d'août, trois mois après l'incendie, les marchés d'alimentation et les pharmacies opéraient toujours avec des tablettes dégrainées.

■ La vie — et les opérations des compagnies de déménagement — après l'incendie

Au début juin, Matco avait rouvert son bureau, bien que la plupart de ses employés ne furent pas encore de retour dans la ville. Parmi tous les déménagements qu'ils avaient planifiés au mois de mai, seulement un fut annulé; les autres avaient tous été reportés à partir du début juin. Bien qu'elle n'ait subi aucun dommage physique en raison de l'incendie, l'entreprise a connu d'importantes pertes financières, indique Melissa, qui ont également causé un impact financier important à ses employés. Un employé quitta son emploi en déménageant à l'extérieur de la ville. Une autre, qui a tout perdu dans l'incendie, a trouvé positif de se tenir occupée et concentrée sur autre chose que ses pertes en retournant travailler. Les opérations de la compagnie ne furent pas de retour à la normale avant la mi-août.

MIB Moving a été capable d'effectuer son premier déménagement le 2 juin, presque un mois complet après que l'incendie ait forcé l'évacuation de la ville. Plusieurs des déménagements qui avaient été planifiés en mai ne pouvaient pas être reportés; les clients ayant perdu leur maison et leurs biens personnels. En juillet et août, les affaires ont repris; plusieurs personnes quittaient la ville, tandis que d'autres y retournaient à la suite de l'évacuation avec un camion plein de marchandises achetées afin de remplacer leurs biens endommagés. Tout comme Matco et Northern Plains, MIB a subi la perte de quelques employés qui ont choisi de quitter la ville après la perte de leur maison. Ce fut un défi pour l'entreprise de combler ces postes, mentionne Connie, spécialement en raison de tous les emplois liés à la construction qui sont disponibles tandis que l'on reconstruit la ville.

Gloria indique que certains clients habituels de sa compagnie quittent définitivement Fort McMurray. Même s'ils veulent continuer à travailler dans cette ville, ils ne veulent plus y résider, dit-elle. Ils préfèrent voyager pour se rendre au travail et demeurer à l'extérieur.

La démolition et l'enlèvement des débris se poursuivent toujours dans la ville. Connie anticipe qu'il en prendra jusqu'à 10 ans pour reconstruire entièrement la ville. Gloria est également d'accord : « Je ne crois pas que la ville sera de retour à la normale pour une assez longue période de temps. » Il existe toujours des secteurs à l'accès restreint où peu de personnes, à l'exception des résidents de ces secteurs, peuvent se rendre. « Ce sont des endroits terrifiants à voir. », mentionne Connie.

Le changement est inévitable et, au moment où notre industrie s'engage dans le 21<sup>e</sup> siècle, il n'y a aucun doute dans mon esprit que l'ACD et ses membres seront aux premières lignes.

■ Les bons et les mauvais côtés

L'évacuation durant l'incendie fut la pire chose que Melissa ait expérimentée. « C'était toutefois extraordinaire, dit-elle, de constater tout le calme et la gentillesse que les gens démontraient, tout en s'occupant les uns des autres ou en faisant monter des gens à bord sur la route. » Encore plus, dit Connie, « les entreprises qui étaient normalement en compétition directe travaillaient côte à côte en affichant un esprit de camaraderie sans précédent. Ce fut une expérience exceptionnelle à vivre. »

Un autre bon côté : à la fin mai, la compagnie Domestic Moving & Storage de Terre-Neuve a transporté gratuitement des paquets en provenance de cette province qui étaient destinés aux évacués. « Au cours des années, nous avons déménagé beaucoup de gens de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador dans les deux directions. », mentionne Martin LeDrew, copropriétaire de l'entreprise. Ils étaient heureux de redonner à ceux qui étaient dans le besoin après cet incendie.

Un des aspects plus négatifs se veulent les difficultés constantes qu'ont eues plusieurs personnes avec leurs compagnies d'assurance et la paperasse administrative gouvernementale. « Le moral était bon au début, dit

Connie, mais maintenant, les gens sont de plus en plus frustrés. » Et, plusieurs personnes sont toujours sans résidence personnelle où vivre. Connie accueille neuf personnes dans sa maison, ayant fait de la place à certains de ceux qui n'ont nulle part où aller.

Parmi les situations négatives étant survenues depuis l'incendie, on peut mentionner l'arrivée dans la ville de plus de déménageurs malhonnêtes qui espèrent capitaliser sur la dévastation que l'on retrouve ici, mentionne Connie. « Les gens sont désespérés et maintenant, plus que jamais, ils ne recherchent que le plus bas prix possible, ne réalisant pas qu'ils risquent plutôt de perdre tout ce qu'il leur reste. C'est vraiment horripilant d'entendre certaines des histoires horribles qui sont survenues au cours des dernières semaines. » ■

What is ELD and How Can Mobile Make It Easier?

By Stephanie Webster

Editor's note: This article will help to enlighten members who will be affected by the new Electronic Logging Device rule coming into effect in the U.S. next year. We estimate that 70 to 80 percent of the current moves occurring between Canada and the United States are handled by Canadian drivers who will be affected by the regulation changes and who will have to be compliant by December 2017. Fleetmatics is one of many companies that can help to prepare for this transition and they will be providing a workshop at CAM'S 2016 Annual Conference.

NORTH AMERICA is feeling the pressure of the new ELD (Electronic Logging Device) rule from the FMCSA (Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration). However, many companies don't understand how this may affect them. Let's review the basics of Who, What, When, and Why to find out more.

■ Who?

All fleets currently using RODS (record of duty status) in the United States should review if their drivers need ELDs. This includes long distance movers with dedicated fleets in the U.S. along with those that transfer to the U.S. from Canada. Some exemptions may apply:

- For drivers that stay solely in Canada, there is no mandate – yet. Canadian regulators are trying to finalize a rule in 2017, but there are requirements yet to be clarified. Stay tuned!
- For U.S. short-haul drivers (100/150 air miles), continue using daily timetables.

• Leniency is granted to those on the federal guidelines every once in a while. You can stay on paper if using RODS less than 8 days in a 30-day period.

• For vehicles manufactured prior to the year 2000, no ELD is required. However, if you want to track your trucks, or have drivers automate a Driving status between ELD vehicles, ask your potential provider if they can support compatible vehicle tracking units.

■ What?

For simplicity's sake, ELDs must automate and manage accurate HOS (Hours of Service) status and monitor and capture specific engine data. The 500+ page ELD specification has many more details, which every provider must strictly adhere to.

■ When?

Be aware of these key dates:

- December 2017: Many are starting to review e-log solutions in preparation for this first mandatory compliance date. Drivers must be on either an AOB RD (automatic onboard recording device) or an ELD final rule solution.
- December 2019: All HOS regulated vehicles must be using an ELD final rule solution.

■ Why?

So, why a mandate now? For many years, electronic logs had been only enforced on high-risk safety offenders, or voluntarily adopted by cutting-edge transportation companies. This aligned with the FMCSA goal of improving compliance and safety. After several regulatory attempts, U.S. Congress forced a rule to standardize electronic log data and create solutions that would prevent driver harassment to work longer hours. Now, e-logs will apply to most drivers within the U.S. who currently keep records today.

Fleetmatics LogBook Driver Dashboard • Application de suivi de flotte de Fleetmatics – Tableau de bord du conducteur

As you start reviewing ELD providers, you may want to consider these ideas.

Are they here to stay? Several software providers have registered an ELD solution on the FMCSA website through the self-certification process. Most are first-time e-log systems. Based on industry announcements, established AOBRD providers are planning to register their ELD solutions into 2017, as they develop to the ELD specifications and continue to support fully compliant AOBRD e-logs.

Remember, implementing AOBRD prior to December 2017 will keep you compliant through 2019.

The FMCSA recommends that carriers are cautious not to adopt any vendor simply because they're registered on the list. Be sure to vet the solution that best suits your business!

How can I stretch my investment? As you plan to invest funds to meet the new regulations, ask if the solution can improve your business with those same dollars. Does it offer fleet management tools to manage vehicle location or help to monitor safety areas like speeding and driving behavior? Can you use the product to help save money on fuel, vehicle wear-and-tear, and wasted onsite time? Finding ROI and increasing productivity are tangible ways to find value beyond a compliance checkbox.

Can mobile ELD help me as a mover? The industry has seen a trend toward mobile technology for compliance and safety. Fleetmatics understands how important it is to give your drivers the right tools to do their job. Fleetmatics LogBook lets drivers use a device they are already familiar with – a phone or tablet – to help manage daily e-logs.

Common feedback from LogBook customers is that drivers will Log in, go On Duty, and GO! This highlights the simplicity of moving from paper to e-logs and using a tool they know and can use quickly. Movers want to stay focused on the important parts of their job: packing, loading and unloading, and being on time. Using an app to track compliance easily will encourage movers to stay on task.

Transitioning from paper to electronic logs is an important step for compliance. Considering an ELD mobile device to help keep drivers safe, compliant, and confident could be a huge benefit when making your next compliance decision!

La réglementation ELD et comment une application mobile ELD vous facilitera-t-elle la tâche?

Par Stephanie Webster

Note de l'éditeur :
Cet article sera très utile aux membres de l'association qui sont concernés par la nouvelle réglementation sur les systèmes d'enregistrement électroniques qui entrera en vigueur aux États-Unis dès l'année prochaine. Nous estimons qu'entre 70 à 80 % des déménagements effectués entre le Canada et les États-Unis sont réalisés par des camionneurs canadiens qui seront touchés par ces changements de réglementation et qui devront s'y conformer d'ici décembre 2017. Fleetmatics est l'une des nombreuses compagnies qui peut vous assister dans cette transition et qui offrira un atelier lors de la Conférence annuelle 2016 de l'ACD.

L'AMÉRIQUE DU NORD ressent la pression engendrée par la nouvelle réglementation ELD (Systèmes d'enregistrement électroniques) émise par la FMCSA américaine (Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration). Cependant, plusieurs entreprises ne saisissent pas complètement quels en seront les impacts. Profitons-en pour nous questionner sur le Qui, le Quoi, le Quand et le Pourquoi afin d'en découvrir plus à ce sujet.

■ Qui?

Toutes les flottes utilisant actuellement le système RODS (record of duty status ou rapport d'activités) aux États-Unis devraient vérifier si leurs camionneurs ont besoin d'un système ELD. Ceci inclut les déménageurs sur longue distance possédant des flottes dédiées au marché américain ainsi que ceux qui effectuent des transferts aux États-Unis à partir du Canada. Certaines exemptions peuvent s'appliquer :

- Pour les camionneurs qui demeurent exclusivement au Canada, il n'existe présentement aucun mandat à cet effet – pour l'instant du moins. Les législateurs canadiens tentent de finaliser une réglementation à cet effet pour 2017, mais certaines exigences restent à être clarifiées. C'est à surveiller!
- Pour les camionneurs sur courte distance aux États-Unis (de 100 à 150 milles) ceux-ci doivent poursuivre l'utilisation de registres quotidiens d'activités.
- Une certaine souplesse est permise à ceux qui ne sont soumis aux lignes directrices fédérales que sur une base occasionnelle. Vous pouvez poursuivre l'utilisation des documents en format papier si vous utilisez le système RODS moins de 8 jours à l'intérieur d'une période de 30 jours.
- Pour les véhicules construits avant l'année 2000, aucun système ELD n'est requis. Cependant, si vous désirez suivre l'itinéraire de vos camions ou que vos camionneurs utilisent des processus pour automatiser un rapport d'activités entre les véhicules dotés d'un système ELD, vous pouvez demander à votre fournisseur éventuel s'il est en mesure de fournir des unités de localisation des véhicules compatibles.

■ Quoi?

Pour simplifier le tout, les systèmes ELD doivent pouvoir automatiser et gérer le rapport des heures de service (HOS) ainsi que suivre et recueillir les données du moteur. Le règlement de plus de 500 pages décrivant les spécifications des systèmes ELD contient beaucoup plus d'exigences auxquelles chacun des fournisseurs de services doit strictement se conformer.

■ Quand?

- Prenez note de ces dates importantes :
- Décembre 2017 : Plusieurs commenceront à étudier des solutions d'enregistrement électroniques afin de se préparer pour cette première date de conformité obligatoire. Les camionneurs doivent utiliser, soit un système AOB RD (automatic onboard recording device) ou une solution compatible avec la règlementation finale sur les systèmes ELD.

■ Pourquoi?

Alors, pourquoi un mandat dès maintenant? Pendant plusieurs années, les registres ont été obligatoires uniquement pour les délinquants en sécurité présentant un risque élevé, ou ont été adoptés par les entreprises de transport de pointe sur une base volontaire. Et ce, en raison de l'objectif de la FMCSA d'améliorer la conformité et la sécurité. Après plusieurs tentatives de réglementation, le congrès américain a imposé une réglementation afin de normaliser le rapport des registres de données électroniques et d'assurer la mise en place de nouvelles solutions dans le but de prévenir toute forme d'harcèlement des camionneurs en vue de les obliger à travailler sur des horaires prolongés. Maintenant, des registres électroniques seront imposés à la plupart des camionneurs opérant sur le marché américain qui maintiennent actuellement des records d'activité.

Au moment où vous débutez l'évaluation des fournisseurs de systèmes ELD, il se peut que vous souhaitiez considérer les points suivants.

Sont-ils là pour rester? Plusieurs fournisseurs de logiciels ont enregistré une solution ELD sur le site Web de la FMCSA via le processus d'autocertification. La plupart sont de nouveaux systèmes d'enregistrement de données électroniques. En se basant sur les annonces faites par l'industrie, des fournisseurs de systèmes AOB RD se proposent d'enregistrer leurs solutions d'enregistrement de données électroniques au cours de l'année 2017 tandis que sont élaborées les spécifications des systèmes ELD et que l'Industrie continue de supporter pleinement l'utilisation de systèmes électroniques d'enregistrement de données de type AOB RD (e-logs) qui sont entièrement conformes.

Rappelez-vous que l'implantation du système AOB RD avant le mois de décembre 2017 vous permettra de demeurer conforme jusqu'en 2019.

La FMCSA recommande que les transporteurs fassent preuve de prudence afin de ne pas adopter les solutions proposées par n'importe quel fournisseur simplement parce qu'ils sont enregistrés sur la liste. Assurez-vous de bien évaluer la solution qui sera la mieux adaptée à votre entreprise!

Comment puis-je maximiser mon investissement? Comme vous planifiez d'investir de l'argent afin de vous conformer aux nouvelles réglementations, demandez-vous si la solution envisagée peut contribuer à améliorer votre entreprise au même coût. Offre-t-elle des outils de gestion de flotte vous permettant de gérer efficacement le positionnement de vos véhicules ou qui vous seront utiles pour contrôler les facteurs relatifs à la sécurité, tels la vitesse et le comportement au volant? Est-ce que ce produit pourra vous aider à réduire la consommation de carburant, l'usure des véhicules et les pertes de temps inutiles? Le calcul de votre retour sur investissement (ROI) et de la productivité accrue sont des moyens tangibles d'évaluer la réelle valeur d'un tel système au-delà de simplement cocher la case relative à la conformité à un règlement.

Est-ce qu'une application mobile ELD peut m'être utile à titre de déménageur? L'industrie a noté une tendance vers la technologie des applications mobiles pour des raisons de conformité et de sécurité. Fleetmatics comprend bien l'importance de donner les bons outils à vos camionneurs pour leur permettre d'accomplir leur travail. L'application de géolocalisation (LogBook) de Fleetmatics permet aux camionneurs d'utiliser un dispositif avec lequel ils sont déjà familiers – un téléphone ou une tablette – afin de les aider à gérer l'enregistrement quotidien de données par voie électronique.

Les commentaires reçus de nos clients utilisant l'application de géolocalisation indiquent que les camionneurs n'ont qu'à se connecter, se mettre au travail et C'EST PARTI! Ceci démontre bien la facilité d'effectuer une transition des documents en version papier vers des registres de données électroniques ainsi que la possibilité pour les camionneurs de se servir d'un outil qui leur est familier et qu'ils peuvent utiliser rapidement. Les déménageurs désirent se concentrer sur les aspects les plus importants de leur travail : l'emballage, le chargement et le déchargement, ainsi que l'importance de respecter les délais. L'utilisation d'une application qui permet de facilement vérifier la conformité aux règles encouragera les déménageurs à se concentrer sur leurs tâches.

La transition des registres en version papier vers les systèmes d'enregistrement électroniques se veut une étape importante dans le processus de conformité. Considérer la possibilité d'utiliser une application ELD mobile afin de permettre aux camionneurs de rouler de façon sécuritaire, en toute conformité et avec confiance pourrait représenter un avantage énorme en vue de votre prochaine décision relativement au processus de conformité!

Moving Forward with Our Partners is our conference theme this year and, in that vein, we'll be providing attendees with opportunities to develop new partnerships and renew old ones – by networking with industry colleagues, attending business sessions with top-notch presenters and honouring exceptional individuals in the industry at CAM's biggest social event, our Annual Awards Dinner.

We have an exceptional program this year that promises to deliver strategies to promote safety in the industry and reduce costs, respond to new developments in the industry and anticipate changes on the marketplace horizon.

Two keynote presenters will kick off the program:

- Phil Soper, CEO of Royal LePage & Brookfield Real Estate Services, will be commenting on the real estate market outlook that so greatly influences relocation trends, and
- David Bradley, President & CEO of the Canadian Trucking Alliance and the Ontario Trucking Association, will review the challenges that are unfolding in the transportation industry.

We've also invited specialists to bring you up to date on new developments in workplace safety and worker's compensation, prepare you for intense media exposure when a dreaded disaster occurs, introduce you to Fastfrate's intermodal shipping model and prepare you for new electronic logging practices Canadian drivers need to understand.

This event would not be possible without the ongoing support of our partners – our supplier members and sponsors – who endorse CAM and its objectives. The business sessions will run from Monday morning to noon on Tuesday. There will be lots of breaks in-between, as well as two get-togethers, where you can connect with old friends and new ones and meet CAM's key supporters. An informal reception on Sunday evening will be a great opportunity for attendees to meet and mingle over hors d'oeuvres and refreshments. On Monday evening, CAM's very popular Annual Awards Dinner will honour distinguished members in the industry and this year we've added two new awards – Independent Mover of the Year and Agent of the Year.

Leading members of the supplier community will also be showing you their latest products and telling you about their newest services at CAM's trade show that's open during the business sessions and breaks.

CAM's annual conference is an important industry event that's held through the sponsorship of Canada's leading van lines and top industry suppliers, all with CAM's appreciation. Each year, it provides a not-to-be-missed opportunity for members to gain practical business management information that's tailored specifically to meet the special needs of household goods moving professionals.
